Free Medical Service Plan Is Disclosed

By J. T. HALLINAN

LONDON, Feb. 17. — The Churchill government began the inevitable battle over the Beveridge plan today with the publication of the first of a series of white papers showing how far it is prepared to go to implement the recommendations of that famous, but most controversial, report.

The white paper, which was issued jointly by the ministry of health and the secretary for Scotland discloses the government's conception of a scheme of universal free medical services for every man, woman and child in much the same language as the Beveridge report but with full and explicit concessions to the British Medical Association which has been doing its utmost to preserve full scope for private practice.

COST OF SCHEME.

The government scheme would cost 148,000,000 pounds per year compared with the Beveridge estimate of 170,000,000 pounds.

"Three freedoms" are laid down in the white paper. Firstly, people are free to use or not use the pro-

Debate to Follow Churchill's Review

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The House of Commons will hold a debate following Prime Minister Churchill's statement on the war and international situation at the next series of sittings, Foreign Secretary Eden announced today.

The prime minister will speak an hour or more and cover considerable ground, including the situation in Italy, the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration and possibly the Russo-Polish dispute.

The parliamentary correspondent of the press association said that empire relations may be brought into the debate in view of the impending London conference of the prime ministers.

Wintry Weather In Sask., Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17. — (CP) — After a brief letup with his frigid assault, General Winter opened up on Manitoba and Saskatchewan with his heavy artillery today, toppling temperatures to new low levels at some points.

Prince Albert, Sask., with 37 below zero recorded the lowest temperature during the night, with 33 below at Regina. Minnedosa, Man., with minus 31 was the coldest spot in Manitoba, but Brandon and The Pas were only one point behind. Bitter north winds swept the Winnipeg area early today with the mercury hovering around 19 below.

Meanwhile, the weather continued comparatively mild in Alberta.

Allies Lose 3,366 Bombers During 1943 Operations

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—A total of 3,366 bombers—2,369 of the R.A.F. and 997 American—was lost over Germany and northern Europe during 1943 in operations from British bases, Sir Archibald Sinclair, air secretary, yesterday told the House of Commons.

January, 1944, losses were 319 British and 178 American, he said.

Presumably Sir Archibald's statement of R.A.F. losses included those of the R.C.A.F. and other dominions air forces flying with bomber command.

13 Nurses Escape Through Hun Lines

NAPLES, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Allied headquarters today announced that all 13 of the nurses who crash-landed in Albania were safe after a 60-day journey through Nazi-controlled territory. The crew of four and 13 soldiers also are safe.

Claim Raid

LONDON, Feb. 17. — (CP). — The Berlin radio claimed yesterday that British planes had bombed Hammerfest, most northerly town in Norway, and 30 miles from the Alten fjord, lair of the Nazi battleship Tirpitz.

Canol Project Workers "Defeated" Bitter Cold

Welding crews in sub-zero temperatures, worked round the clock on the recently completed Canol pipe line project from Norman Wells, North West Territories, to Whitehorse in the Yukon. In the above picture is seen welding equipment that had to be enclosed and mounted on sleds to facilitate moving along the route of nearly 600 miles. Construction of the oil pipe line ranks as one of the most stupendous engineering tasks ever completed on this continent.

Canol Undertaking

Big War Project Finished As Last Links in North Oil Pipeline Are Joined

North American engineering genius, plus the stubborn perseverance that rolled back the early frontiers of this continent, has scored another great triumph.

And Canadians have again shared with their American cousins in the completion of another great war project in the Canadian Northwest, with the final closing of the last two links in the pipe line from Norman Wells, N.W.T., to Whitehorse in the Yukon.

The two links were welded together today near Macmillan Pass, astride the Arctic continental divide, deep in the Mackenzie Mountain range, about 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton.

COMPLETES VITAL LINK

The welding of the line completes one of the most vital parts of the Northwest Service Command's Canol project, a program of the U.S. Army for development and distribution of oil and gasoline in northwestern Canada and Alaska.

The Canol project was initiated in April of 1942 when a Japanese attack on Alaska was imminent. Shipping was vulnerable to Japanese attack and a supply of fuel oil

Roosevelt Asks Big Sum For Navy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today asked the largest appropriation in history for the United States Navy—$30,789,000,000 for the 1945 fiscal year.

The outlay, subject to congressional approval, would compare with $27,435,037,198 appropriated for the 1944 fiscal year and $23,808,852,547 for the preceding year.

The tentative 1945 estimate for the war program of the war department is $18,001,451,840, compared with a 1944 appropriation of $59,036,297,571.

U.K. By-Election Hotly Contested

By ALAN RANDAL

BAKEWELL, Derbyshire, England, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The wildest political scramble of the war, the West Derbyshire by-election, was climaxed last night by the Churchill-backed candidate, the Marquess of Hartington, and Alderman Charles White, one of his two opponents, speaking at the same time in Bakewell's old town hall.

Their speeches were the final shots in a hotly-contested campaign which, while not breaking the wartime party truce, showed the peoples' strong interest in the Independents' will to challenge a government-supported candidate. There was no suggestion, however, that prosecution of the war ever was an election issue.

Although voting takes place today, the result will not be known until Friday. West Derbyshire became vacant through retirement of Hartington's uncle, Col. Henry Hunloke.

Soldiers to Wear Red Chevron For Each Year in Army

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.— (CP)—All Canadian soldiers, whether volunteers or those called up under National Resources Mobilization Act, will wear a red chevron on the right arm for each year in the army, it was announced today at headquarters, Military District No. 10.

All service during the present war will count and those who had completed one years' service on or before Sept. 10, 1940, will wear one silver chevron and one red chevron for each subsequent year.

Butter and Cheese Ration Is Reduced For Armed Forces

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Defence headquarters last night announced that personnel of the Canadian navy, army and air force henceforth will eat less butter and cheese as a direct contribution to more nutritious Red Cross parcels for Canadian prisoners of war in enemy hands.

An amended ration scale for the armed services provides a reduction in the butter ration from 1½ to 1 1-3 ounces for each man daily, and a reduction in the cheese ration from one-half ounce to three-eighths of an ounce per man per day.

The deficiency will be made up by the equivalent in jam and lard content in rations, the announcement said.

Labor-Progressive Party in Ontario Calls Convention

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The Ontario Labor-Progressive Party announced today its first provincial convention will be held in Toronto Feb. 19 and 20, when a provincial program will be adopted and a provincial leader elected.

Ald. Norman Freed, party organizer, stated "the program and policies we adopt will be governed by the need for strengthening national unity for victory and post-war reconstruction."

Canada in Public Mind in Gt. Britain

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Canada never has been more in the public mind in Great Britain than now, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner in London, said at a press conference here today.

This, he said, is due to the large number of Canadian service personnel serving in Britain, to a realization of what Canada is doing in the war and to the knowledge of every housewife that a big part of her bacon ration comes from Canada.

"We couldn't have better ambassadors than the men in our three services," said Mr. Massey. "It makes me prouder every day of being a Canadian when I see them both at work and on leave."

Blast Jap Base In Surprise Raid

PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 17.—A thrust by land-based U.S. army Liberators at the Caroline Island base of Ponape served notice on Japan today that American forces in the central Pacific have extended their striking range 3,000 miles west of Pearl Harbor—nearly two-thirds of the way from the United States to China.

With the Marshall and Gilbert Island groups dominated by army and navy forces under Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, the Japanese-mandated Carolines—lying almost in a direct line westward to the Philippines and the China coast—have been laid open for direct attacks.

Four-engined bombers made the deepest penetration of the war into Japan's mandated empire Monday to drop 55 tons of high explosives on shore installations at Ponape, 650 land miles southwest of newly-conquered Kwajalein in the Marshalls and only 437 miles from the great Japanese Caroline base of Truk.

Germans Are Urged Volunteer For Work

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. — (AP) — Fritz Sauckel, Nazi delegate-general for the direction of labor, has called on all able-bodied German men and women legally exempt from national labor conscription to volunteer for war work "in this year of greatest decision," a Berlin broadcast said.

Italo Anti-Fascist Leader Is Injured

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The Bari radio said today that Benedetto Croce, elderly Italian philosopher and anti-Fascist political leader, is undergoing treatment in a Naples hospital for a fractured arm and dislocated shoulder suffered in an accident in his home at Sorrento. Croce recently has been active in the Italian Committee of Liberation.

By WILLIAM TYREE

PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 17.—It is announced today that a United States task force has attacked Truk, Japanese "Pearl Harbor" in the heart of the Carolines.

The attack was spearheaded by several hundred planes. It was launched by daylight on Wednesday.

A United States navy communique today did not state that the raid, which began yesterday, had terminated. It may be continuing.

Lack of details, indicating radio silence, is so thorough that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, supreme mid-Pacific commander, himself does not know more, another indication that the raid may be continuing.

This might indicate the Japanese once more were caught by surprise that a big U.S. force remained in that area, where it reasonably could be expected to be subjected to attack by enemy carrier and land-based planes and submarines.

Allies Repulse Nazi Assaults In Beachhead

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, Feb. 17.—German armored forces, attacking with fanatical fury over a battlefield littered with their dead and the wreckage of burned-out tanks, broke in waves against an unyielding Allied line on the Anzio beachhead today in an all-out attempt to drive the British and Americans into the sea.

Almost 36 hours after the opening of their big offensive, which was the second major Nazi effort to crush the 5th Army beachhead, the Germans were striking with redoubled fury at the northern and southern flanks of the Allied lines.

Front dispatches said the Germans came on in endless waves, heedless of their losses and the overwhelming superiority of the Allied air forces swarming over the battlefield.

ATTACK MANY POINTS

Spearheaded by Mark IV tanks and the big 60-ton Tigers, and supported by a thunderous barrage from their field guns in the Alban hills, the Nazi shock troops hurled themselves again and again at a score of points on the 14-mile long beachhead perimeter.

Against them, the Allies threw in their own tanks and tank-busters and the massed fire of their artillery.

Despite the power and fury of the German attack, reports from the beachhead said, the British and American lines held firm everywhere.

Enemy casualties were said to be piling up much more heavily than among the Allied troops.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Feb. 17.—Allied planes, braving intense anti-aircraft fire, smashed the big Japanese base at Kavieng, New Ireland, Tuesday, it was announced today, in the focal attack of widespread aerial assaults that caused heavy damage to enemy installations and equipment throughout the southwest Pacific.

The Allied raiders, flying bombers and attack planes, during the day shot down or destroyed 20 enemy planes; destroyed or severely damaged 30 others; sank seven enemy ships and several small craft, and damaged a submarine chaser.

The Kavieng attack, aimed at crippling the enemy's Bismarck bases, was carried out in force at comparatively low level and left the town a mass of flames and smoke. The Kavieng airdrome was damaged heavily, and the Allied fliers sank a 3,000-ton cargo ship, three coastal vessels and several smaller craft in the harbor. Two float-planes were destroyed and three others damaged.

Deny Papal Villa Military Target

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The apostolic delegate to the United States, Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, today stated on behalf of the Vatican that the papal villa at Castel Gandolfo, Italy, could not be considerd a military target.

The delegate issued this statement:

"His Eminence, Cardinal Maglione, secretary of state of His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, has instructed me to state that the recent report appearing in the press and credited to the Allied high command, to the effect that the actual territory of the papal villa at Castel Gandolfo is 'saturated with Germans and therefore subject to bombing,' is not true.

"His eminence declares that no German soldier has been admitted within the borders of the neutral pontifical villa and that no German military whatsoever are within it at present."

Allies Strengthen Hold on Islands Without Incident

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Allied troops who invaded the Green islands Monday and Tuesday have consolidated their positions without incident, headquarters announced today.

The Allies meanwhile gave Kavieng, the Japanese base on New Ireland island, one of the heaviest aerial bombings, sinking a 3,000-ton ship in the harbor and leaving the town a mass of flames.

The Allies lost eight planes in the raid, heaviest loss yet suffered in attacks on the base.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell today made public a new labor relations code providing for compulsory collective bargaining in war industries and other occupations under Dominion jurisdiction.

The code, enacted by an order-in-council passed today, was tabled in the commons.

It provides that once a bargaining representative is certified by a national labor relations board the employer is required to enter into negotiations with the union.

If an agreement is reached, strikes are prohibited during the life of the agreement and any disputes must be arbitrated. If the negotiations collapse the labor deparament's conciliation machinery is to be brought into play.

Industries to which the code applies include: mining and smelting, manufacture of war materials and construction of war projects, transportation, communications and public service utilities.

The code gives all employees in industries affected the right to be members of a trade union or an employer's organization.

The procedure prescribed is that when bargaining representatives have been elected or appointed by a majority of the employees, application shall be made to the national labor relations board which is established under the code and which

Gen. McNaughton Again Discussed

Debate on General McNaughton was renewed in the House of Commons Wednesday by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, who said "the responsibility rested with the government whether the whole story would be told." Considerable discussion took place, but no new facts were revealed. Premier King, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader; Defence Minister Ralston, and John Blackmore, New Democracy Leader, took part in the debate. Full reports appear on page 3.

Stimson Confident Holding Beachhead

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson spoke confidently of the Allied position at Anzio today as dispatches from headquarters in Italy reported a fresh and fierce Nazi attempt to break up the beachhead south of Rome.

That beachhead, Stimson told his press conference, has been firmly established, with British and American forces holding superiority of striking power in tanks, artillery and aircraft and prepared to use present positions as a springboard for further advances.

Asserting there had been "unwarranted pessimism" in some news dispatches and discussions of the Anzio operation Stimson said:

"The situation in Italy now is an illustration to point up the old saying 'Keep your shirt on'."

Some members of the other three Doukhobor branches, the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ, Named Doukhobors and Independents, still were following the 200 fanatics who crossed to Glade but were reported to be remaining at a distance.

Shoreacres, meeting place for the Sons of Freedom since their disrobing and card collection incidents at Brilliant Sunday, was quiet last night with only regular residents remaining.

McNaughton Case

Massey Likely Key Figure in Command Issue

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Whether disclosures to show why Lieut.-General A. G. L. McNaughton was weeded out of the command of the First Canadian Army become public, rested today on the flimsy possibility that politicians and the press of Canada will observe the truce declared yesterday. In taking the stand the government would not proceed in further public discussion of the McNaughton case, Prime Minister King warned disclosures might be necessary if future statements inside the House or not, forced the government's hand.

First violation of the inter-party truce came yesterday when Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, charged the government had withheld details of the McNaughton case, a fact plainly established by Defence Minister Ralston when he disclosed medical records showing the general was ill and indicated there were other documents. Opposition leaders had those documents read to them in Mr. King's office on Monday.

A possible key figure in the army command issue was in Ottawa today. He was Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner to London, whose presence in Ottawa for the first time since before the

Albertans Are Disappointed Trying to Draw Nazi Fire

By DOUGLAS AMARON

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Feb. 17.—(CP)—"The biggest surprise of my life," was Cpl. H. B. (Smokey) Atkinson's summary of three hours he spent in No-Man's Land trying in vain to draw fire from German machine gunners.

To hear Smokey, whose home is in Hythe, Alta., you would think he was downright disappointed no enemy took a shot at him. He tried everything in his power to attract their attention.

Smokey belongs to a scout platoon and with Ptes. Wally Hawk, Parkland, Alta., and Louis Canada, Pine Falls, Man., went out on a predawn patrol to draw fire away from another group of soldiers investigating German positions.

"We got in there easily," said Smokey, "and when it looked as though nothing was going to happen, we coughed to attract Jerry's attention. That was no go so I fired a fast burst of tommy."

The Germans remained silent and the Canadians moved deeper into their lines, still without response. They tossed a hand grenade to make it appear they had encountered enemy, and there was dead silence.

"Then we unloaded a tommy gun magazine and loaded it again, and 'snuck' along a little further to the side of a bank which we all rolled down with quite a clatter," Smokey continued. "But it was still no go and we never did draw fire that night."

New National Policy Urged For Dominion

SASKATOON, Feb. 17—(CP)—A new national policy for Canada, providing for maximum production, full employment, fair prices for agriculture and fair wages for labor "without the loss of freedom," was urged here yesterday by John Bracken, Dominion leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Addressing the convention of the Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Bracken declared the new policy he was advocating should be so embrasive "that everyone can get on the bandwagon and feel that they are working for themselves, for their children and for the boys and girls when they come back from overseas."

GIVES KEY POINTS

Mr. Bracken enunciated the following key points as a basis for a national policy:

1. Canada for the Canadian people, but not a policy of isolation.
2. Full development of the country's national resources.
3. Share the fruits of development equitably, with agriculture, labor and industry sitting in with the government to discuss their common problems.
4. Raise living standards by promoting trade.
5. Raise living standards by promoting peace.

Dwelling on the fifth point, Mr. Bracken declared that 10 times as much had been spent by the dominion in one year for war as had ever been spent in one year during peace.

"The wider free trade we build, the higher the standard of living," he said. "Let us be partners in the British Commonwealth of Nations, cousins in the United States, friends of all other nations and yet not lose our autonomy. Let us sit in with other nations and see what can be done."

CITES NATIONAL POLICY

Continuing, Mr. Bracken quoted from the national policy advanced more than 75 years ago by Sir John A. Macdonald, one of the Fathers of Confederation: "Markets at home when denied them abroad; prosperity by developing resources; security by providing work; and Canadian unity."

He declared there was less unity today than at any time in the history of Canada. Labor had been overlooked, agriculture forgotten and Quebec had been "misled" for many years and "deceived" for the past five years.

"One task we face is to rebuild what Sir John A. Macdonald tried to build and Sir Wilfred Laurier sought to maintain, he said.

Referring to bonuses received by western agriculture in past year, Mr. Bracken declared: "No longer should the western farmers be looked upon as the poor relations, for if the price of farm products had been fair they would have received 10 times as much as they received by way of farm bonuses."

Argentine Cabinet May Be Reshuffled

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 17—President Pedro Ramirez was reported today to have scheduled a conference with Gen. Arturo Rawson, his co-leader in last June's revolution, and informed sources said they might reshuffle the entire cabinet, call elections and return Argentina to constitutional government.

Ramirez staved off a cabinet crisis temporarily yesterday by accepting the resignations of four leaders of his revolutionary regime.

Two of them—Gen. Alberto Gilbert, foreign minister, and Col. Enrique P. Gonzalez, secretary of the presidency—were forced out at the insistence of a group of younger officers of the army because they had attempted to force a declaration of war against the Axis.

Allies Holding Against Heavy German Attack

belched their tons of high explosives into the opposing rear lines, probing for supply dumps and troop concentrations.

Putting an end to the three-day lull that followed the collapse of their first counter-offensive last week, the Germans hurled their full striking force against a narrow sector on the British-held northern flank of the beachhead yesterday morning.

Under cover of a terrific rolling barrage laid down by their massed artillery and fighter-bombers, waves of Nazi troops charged against the British positions astride the Aprilia-Anzio highway.

Big German tanks lunged in behind the infantry, probing for a weak spot in the Allied lines, and came to grips with British armored forces.

PLANES CHARGE TROOPS

Hundreds of Allied fighter-bombers streamed into the battle, tangling with the low-flying enemy planes and ripping up the charging German troops with bombs and gunfire.

Front reports said the enemy offensive was met everywhere by determined resistance and it was indicated that British lines were holding fast.

The German attacks continued throughout the day and all last night, however, and at daybreak this morning they were increasing in fury as the Nazis fought fanatically to achieve a breakthrough.

(The German high command tacitly acknowledged that its offensive had not yet succeeded in breaking the Allied lines. The Nazi communique this morning reported that British troops and tanks counter-attacked in the Aprilia sector, and made no reference to German gains.)

GREAT BARRAGE

(A BBC broadcast said the German attack was preceded by a 24-hour artillery barrage, and Radio Rome said that "never before in Italy has there been such a powerful deployment of artillery as in the beachhead.")

The full fury of the German assault again centred on a narrow sector of the beachhead in the Aprilia area, where the Nazis opened their first large-scale offensive last week in an effort to break out their armored forces onto the main highway leading to Anzio and the sea.

The first enemy defensive collapsed Saturday after five days of furious fighting, and Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander declared confidently that the beachhead would be held.

In the intervening three days, however, the Germans were believed to have reinforced their wearied divisions and it appeared that the new offensive was on an even greater scale than their first drive.

WEATHER AIDS ALLIES

Clear weather this time favored the Allies, however, and reports from the battle area said hundreds of British, Dominion and American planes were raking the charging Nazi columns with gunfire and ripping up their supporting lines of communication all the way back to Rome.

Allied airpower also blanketed the main 5th Army front around Cassino, where the Germans launched a small-scale diversionary attack to coincide with their main offencive against the beachhead.

Bombers returned to attack the ruins of the 1,415-year-old Benedictine monastery on Mount Cassino yesterday, piling new wreckage about the heads of Nazi gunners entrenched behind the massive walls of the abbey.

Brisk patrol fighting continued on the British 8th Army's Adriatic coastal front.

W. C. Owens Is Made Western Manager C.N.R.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—Owing to the increase of traffic and the expanding activities of the western region of the Canadian National Railways caused by Wartime conditions, it has become necessary to enlarge the supervisory administration of that territory, according to an announcement made today by N. B. Walton, executive vice-president, in appointing a general manager for the region to relieve the heavy burden carried by W. R. Devenish as vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Devenish now becomes vice-president of the western region, and Walter C. Owens, of Winnipeg, hitherto assistant general manager, has been appointed general manager and will maintain headquarters at Winnipeg.

Other promotions and appointments of senior officers in the Canadian National Railways system are also announced by Mr. Walton. J. F. Pringle has been appointed vice-president and general manager, central region, with headquarters at Toronto, succeeding Maj. F. L. C. Bond, D.S.O., who has retired after 45 years railway service. Mr. Pringle was previously vice-president and general manager, Atlantic region, with headquarters at Moncton, N.B.

J. P. Johnson, hitherto chief of transportation stationed at Montreal, has been named vice-president and general manager, Atlantic region, to succeed Mr. Pringle. Out of nearly 40 years of railroading, Mr. Johnson was employed for the greater part of that period in positions throughout the prairie provinces.

TRANSPORTATION CHIEF

J. W. Wardlaw has been appointed chief of transportation for the system to succeed Mr. Johnson at Montreal. Mr. Wardlaw has been general superintendent, transportation, central region, with office at Toronto.

All of these appointments become effective Tuesday, Feb. 22.

William Roberts Devenish, vice-president, western region, Canadian National Railways, became general superintendent for the Canadian National Railways at Toronto, later serving at North Bay, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

Mr. Devenish was advanced to the position of general superintendent of transportation for the western region in 1936 and three years later was appointed general manager of the region. He was promoted as vice-president and general manager in June, 1942.

FORMER EDMONTONIAN

Walter Clark Owens, who has been appointed general manager, western region, with headquarters at Winnipeg, has had forty years experience in railway work. In 1927 he was appointed superintendent at Kamloops. His next move was to Winnipeg as terminal superintendent and in 1930 he moved to Montreal as superintendent of freight train services. He returned to the west as general superintendent for the Saskatchewan district, then to Edmonton in a similar capacity for the Alberta district. In 1939, Mr. Owens was appointed general superintendent of transportation for the western region, with office at Winnipeg, and in May, 1942, he became assistant general manager to aid W. R. Devenish, then regional general manager.

Free Medical Service Plan Is Disclosed

posed facilities and similary doctors are free to join or not to join. Secondly, people are free to choose their own practitioners or continue to be treated by their present practitioners, even if the latter have joined the scheme. Thirdly, a doctor retains full liberty to pursue his own practice with his own methods without outside clinical interference.

Subject to these restrictions, local authorities will be encouraged to develop their own schemes for free doctors, drugs, medicines, hospital treatment and specialists' advice, while in selected areas, the ministry of health will develop health centres, offering local doctors facilities that few now enjoy outside London and the larger cities.

Hospitals will come under national control, but private institutions now supported partly by funds from the public will continue under their own management.

FINANCING VAGUE

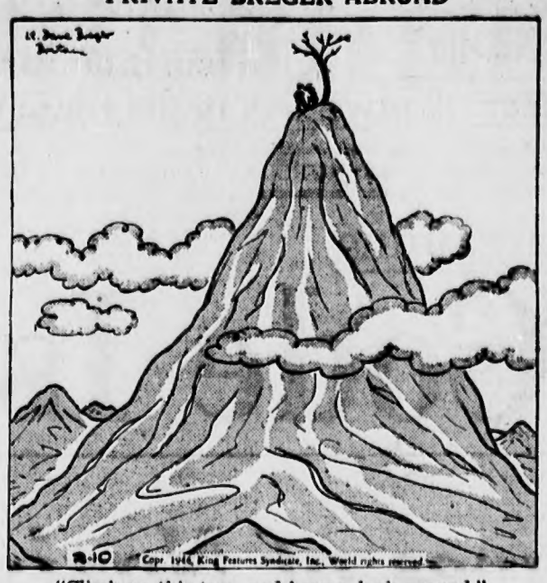

The white paper said the remuneration of doctors joining the health service should be uniform throughout the country, the exact amount to be determined by negotiation.

Somewhat vague regarding finances, the white paper suggested that part of the $592,000,000 be raised by local authorities through rates, the remainder to come from whatever social insurance fund the government finally establishes.

Subsidy Payments Outlawed by Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The United States senate quickly gave final approval yesterday to legislation outlawing subsidy payments to hold down the cost of food, one of the administration's chief weapons in its stabilization program. The subsidy repealer, hitched to a measure extending the life of the commodity corporation, now goes to the House of Representatives, where prompt acceptance today is expected.

New Labor Code For Dominion Is Announced

will comprise not more than eight members.

EXAMINE AGENCY

The board may examine the records of the bargaining agency, conduct a vote, or otherwise satisfy itself that the agency is a proper one to act on behalf of the employees. The bargaining unit may then be certified, specifying the employees to whom the negotiations shall apply.

Any resulting agreement will apply to all employees in the groups specified by the board.

Ten months after the start of the term of a collective bargaining agreement, entered into either before or after the code was introduced, employees may elect new bargaining representatives, the code states.

On certification, the bargaining agency may give the employer 10 days' notice requiring the opening of negotiations for an agreement. The code requires that the parties shall then "negotiate in good faith" and "make every reasonable effort to conclude a collective agreement."

If after 30 days' negotiation either party believes an agreement will not be completed in a reasonable time, intervention of the board may be sought. The minister shall then within three days appoint a conciliation officer to confer with the parties. This officer may recommend the appointment of a conciliation board.

war pointed to urgent business but was not explained officially.

GO-BETWEEN

Mr. Massey's position is that of go-between for Canada and the British government, including the war office, on matters of policy, including high military policy. If any British representations were made to the Canadian government over the McNaughton command and the manner in which it was administered, such representations would likely have come through Mr. Massey's office.

Further, policy in regard to the Canadian Army, which will likely have a British commander for the coming invasion, and in connection with an Allied corps in addition to the Canadian second corps, may be a matter of discussion with Mr. Massey, who will communicate Canadian views to the British government.

That high policy is involved in the McNaughton case was made clear by Mr. King when he said gvoernment refusal to discuss all aspects was designed to protect the war effort of other countries as well as Canada's.

Issues surrounding the McNaughton case arouse some of the strongest political emotions current in Canada. Whether or not the general will suffer from political controversy could not be foreseen, but it was recalled that two years ago a mysterious drive to make McNaughton prime minister developed and attracted some attention until it faded out. Observers regarded it as irresponsible and outside the formal organizations represented in parliament.

NEW ASSURANCES

Main opposition attack on army policy this session has involved raising the question whether the Canadian army has sufficient reinforcements. Such a question was raised during the bitter conscription controversy two years ago, but the evidence has always been that sufficient reinforcements exist and Defence Minister Ralston gave new assurances on that score this week.

No ground is seen here for believing that differences of opinions on reinforcements entered into the McNaughton retirement.

General McNaughton was not primarily a "big army" man, and from the start of the war he recognized importance of full use of Canadian manpower in war production. He submitted a memo to government on this point in 1939.

MINOR ELEMENT

General Bernard Montgomery was once McNaughton's senior commander in Britain. Neither McNaughton nor Montgomery are easy to get along with, according to reports, but this was merely a minor element in McNaughton's retirement. Montgomery was once described by Mr. Churchill as insufferable."

Possibility exists that differences arose over employment of the Canadian army, having held the command, General McNaughton was believed opposed to transferring some of his Canadian divisions to another army, as was done with the 1st and later the 3rd Divisions which were sent to the 8th Army in the Mediterranean.

Defence Minister Ralston, facing criticism arising over the army's long inactivity, last year insisted the army could be taken apart like a bookcase, by transfer of a division or a corps elsewhere. But it is now clear that this did not mean abandoning the army formation, so that there was no question of breaking up the army to leave the commander out of a job. The job is still there.

Reasons why the Canadians were not in action in earlier phases of the war have been ascribed officially to strategic considerations. General McNaughton's Christmas message of 1942 showed plainly this was the case. In an interview in August, 1942, he said the proposal the Canadians undertake the Dieppe raid was made to him, and all questions about the plans were answered satisfactorily by authorities in Britain.

BECAME TARGET

During a prolonged visit to Canada from December to March, 1942, to recover his health because of overwork, General McNaughton became a target for many rumors. One of these, published under L. S. B. Shapiro's name, from Washington, was that McNaughton would be supreme commander of the second front. Inquiries in Ottawa proved this entirely wrong. Shapiro also said McNaughton has come "within an ace of being selected to head the British general staff last winter," (1941-42).

Dr. H. A. Bruce, Toronto Conservative, suggested in 1942 that McNaughton be brought to Canada as supreme war minister in the Canadian government.

These incidents demonstrated how a general might easily suffer too much build-up, for already at that time the belief existed in military circles that McNaughton would not lead the Canadian Army into the second front. Following further intensive army manoeuvres in 1943, this belief became a certainty.

Gossip that either General McNaughton or the Canadian government sought to prevent the Canadian Army from getting into action are regarded as grossly unfair. Both were anxious to have Canadian forces participate in Allied campaigns, but the role assigned the army in the defence of Britain was still valid until early in 1943.

Great Damage

Fires Still Burning After Berlin Raid

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 17.—Berliners, many still dazed from the impact of Tuesday's heaviest air raid in history, were reported digging in the ruins of hundreds of buildings today for the dead and trapped.

Fires continued to burn in the centre of the city and its outskirts, though they gradually were being controlled.

The Stockholm Morgontidningen reported from Berne that so many persons were killed in the R.A.F.'s 2,800-ton attack that mass "emergency graves" were prepared for some of the victims.

The dispatch said the death toll was believed "in the thousands."

A Stockholm resident who was in Berlin during the raid told the Swedish Telegraph Agency that "damage couldn't have been greater."

The traveler said the widely-known Hotel Bristol on Unter den Linden, previously hit but repaired and re-opened, was struck by a land mine.

The Bristol was near the Wilhelmstrasse and it was possible that many government buildings also were hit.

The Henkel chemical factory was understood to have been damaged.

German censorship appeared much more rigid than after previous raids on the capital and the full story of destruction still remained to be told.

Report Soviets Are Within 20 Miles of Pskov

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The Ankara radio said today that the Russian army had reached a point 20 miles from Pskov.

MOSCOW, Feb. 17.—Russian troops hammered fanatically-resisting German survivors deeper into the Cherkasi pocket with bayonets, rifle butts and grenades today as the battle of extermination against the encircled Eighth Army reached the final hand-to-hand stage.

(Russian parachutists have landed behind the German lines at Narva and Russian naval vessels in the Gulf of Finland are pounding the defences of the Estonian city as Soviet forces press in from the east, Helsinki dispatches said today.

(The dispatches said the parachute landings were made in the vicinity of Vaivara, about 15 miles west of Narva on the road to Reval, Estonian capital.)

Soviet spearheads swept to within a little more than 35 miles of Pskov, strategic northern gateway to the Baltic, in pursuit of fleeing German units. The enemy appeared to be in full retreat through the forests and lake country.

Close-quarter fighting developed in the Cherkasi pocket in the central Ukraine as the Soviets' relentless tightening of their ring of encirclement robbed the German remnants of freedom to manoeuvre and forced them to stand almost back to back in fighting off Russian attacks on all sides.

More than 2,500 Germans were killed yesterday in what may have been their last big-scale attempt to break through to their main forces to the south.

MAINTAIN ATTACKS

Though the Russians threw back a new rescue attempt, this time from the southeast, yesterday, front dispatches said the Germans were maintaining the rhythm of their counter-attacks, regardless of cost, in futile efforts to extricate the Cherkasi pocket survivors.

The Communist organ Pravda said Nazi infantry were thrusting against the Soviet lines with clock-like regularity over fields covered with thousands of their dead, felled in earlier attacks.

The consumption of munitions by Russian machine guns and artillery was reported so great that infantrymen were drafted to carry ammunition cases on their shoulders through the deep mud.

Gen. Leonid A. Govorog's Leningrad armies were reported chopping up fleeing enemy units for piecemeal annihilation along the eastern shores of Lakes Peipus and Pskov in a series of outflanking manoeuvres.

(The London Daily Telegraph reported from Stockholm that the Germans were believed to have ordered the evacuation of all towns in Estonia east of a line passing through Tartu, thus clearing a zone 50 miles behind Narva. Radio Berlin said the Russians have opened a new offensive south of Staraya Russa, 110 miles east of Pskov.)

Japs "Bootleg"

HEADQUARTERS, U.S. 14th Air Force in China, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Japanese have turned bootlegger in this war theatre, attempting to peddle phoney brands of liquor—some of it poisoned—to United States troops, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell has warned, in an order to his troops in China.

Writer Says:

Discipline and Comradeship Aid Troops in Tight Spots

Discipline and the sense of comradeship help Canadian soldiers through the tight spots. William Stewart, war correspondent just back from six months at the Italian front, tells about it in this story.—EDITOR.

By WILLIAM STEWART

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Few soldiers go into battle without fear or nervousness. Nerveless exceptions are rare individuals.

However, training, discipline and sense of duty are what carry troops through the tight spots. Every soldier realizes that probably every other man around him knows his fear when enemy shells are falling or when they're under enemy machine-gun fire.

The sense of danger that lives with a frontline soldier and the men with whom he fights helps foster a spirit of comradeship that becomes one of the important things in his campaign life.

Many a soldier will conceal illness and joke away a minor wound to avoid evacuation to hospital from where when recovered he goes to reinforcement camp while awaiting recall to the line.

The reason is fear of separation from the other fellows in his section or platoon and that he might eventually wind up in some other battalion. Regimental pride is real to the majority of troops. Every soldiers likes to think his battalion is the best in the army.

Besides that, the soldier has made true friends he understands and who understand him in his own unit. They've been through difficult times together and that solidified their friendship.

British Troops Kill 700 Japs In Two Weeks

NEW DELHI, Feb. 17.—British troops have killed more than 700 Japanese in two weeks of bitter jungle fighting on the Arakan peninsula in Western Burma, a communique said today, and front reports indicate the Japanese had failed in their attempt to encircle and destroy the British column.

The communique said operations to clear British communication were continuing and troops of the 7th Indian Division were maintaining their positions in the Ngakyedauk Pass leading across the Mayu range.

Reports from the front said the Japanese were beginning to run short of supplies and ammunition, and it was believed that some units were threatened with encirclement by converging British forces moving in from the Taung Bazaar sector and from the south.

MOP UP POCKETS

In the Kaladan valley to the northwest, British West African units mopped up the last enemy pockets in Kaladan village, where the Japanese garrison was reported to have been reduced to eating monkeys.

Brisk patrol fighting continued in the Tiddim area of the Chin Hille and in the Hukawng river valley, where Chinese troops made further advances beyond Taipha Ga.

American fighters and fighter-bombers struck heavily at Japanese troops and supply centres in Northern Burma Tuesday and Wednesday, while British dive bombers attacked enemy lines in the Arakan battle area.

R.A.F. heavy bombers pounded a half-dozen enemy centres in Central Burma Tuesday night, including Prome, Rangoon and Moulmein, and bombed the Thailand capital of Bangkok.

Red Air Force Holds Initiative

MOSCOW, Feb. 17—(AP)—Lieut. Col. Nikolai Denisov declared yesterday the Red Air Force now holds the initiative on the entire German-Russian fighting front. Aerial operations have been increasing, he said.

A Moscow news correspondent disclosed 42-year-old Col. Gen. Pavel Rotministrov is in charge of tank operations against the Germans encircled in the Dnieper Bend.

Artillery now is firing point blank into the tiny ring in which the trapped Nazis have been herded, said the correspondent, Col. Nikolai Akimov.

"Delay" Is Seen Before Synthetic Tires Available

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 17—(CP)—Despite encouraging prospects for synthetic rubber production in Canada this year, it will be "Some considerable time" before tires are produced and made available for all motorists, R. C. Berkinshaw, president of government-operated Polymer Corporation in Sarnia, Ont., last night told the 41st annual business meeting of the Hamilton Automobile club.

If plant capacity is increased sufficiently and war requirements recede, the rubber controller might increase the eligible list, but Mr. Berkinshaw said that from his knowledge of the situation he thought this unlikely. Steps were being taken to increase plant capacity which is a necessary move in synthetic tire manufacture.

In 1920-21 he was manager of the U. of A. rugby team, and was a platoon commander in the University Company, C.O.T.C. Also, he was a member of the student court, the committee of student affairs. In 1923 he was selected as valedictorian of his class.

In the years 1924-25 he won the I.O.D.E. scholarship entitling him to study at Oxford University, and in University circles here and abroad was considered an unusually brilliant student. At Oxford he specialized for three years in the study of international law and constitutional history.

He was a member of the United Church of Canada, the Masonic lodge and the Edmonton club. In athletics his main interests were centred on golf and curling.

After joining the attorney-general's department in 1927, his main activities were in law. He served as a solicitor to the department for several years. Early in his career with the department his ability became recognized and he was called upon to represent the department, and the crown in prosecuting cases in police court.

On the retirement of E. B. Cogswell, K.C., as crown prosecutor in the Supreme court, Mr. McClung in 1936 was appointed to succeed him. Later he was appointed a King's Counsel.

Mr. McClung's fairness and impartiality in dealing with cases won him respect even among those whom he had to prosecute.

His mother, publicly known as Nellie McClung, is the author of several books, while her articles have been widely published. She is known as a lecturer. She sat for one term as a member for Edmonton in the Alberta legislature, being elected at the provincial general election of 1921.

In addition to his wife and two children, Mr. McClung is survived by three brothers and one sister.

A funeral service will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. from Howard and McBride's funeral chapel. Capt. Robert Pearson will officiate, and burial will be in the Edmonton cemetery.

Tributes to the late Mr. McClung were paid in suprme court chambers Thursday morning by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor, and S. H. McCuaig, K.C., bencher of the Law Society of Alberta.

Mr. Justice O'Connor said I learned with regret of the death of a member of the Edmonton bar, J. W. McClung, K.C., the Edmonton agent of the attorney-general. Mr. McClung had many qualities which endeared him to all of us. He had great courage, ability and humanity. He served through the last war in the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. As counsel in criminal prosecutions he was second to none. But it is chiefly by reason of his wonderful personality that we shall all remember Jack McClung. Our sympathy goes out to his widow and children, and to his father and mother.

Graydon Puts Responsibility On Government for Complete Statement on McNaughton

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The granting of leave to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and relieving him of the overseas army command was brought back into House of Commons debate yesterday by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, but the discussion brought out no new information.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the government had nothing to conceal in respect to the leave granted Gen. McNaughton, but that the house should consider whether further discussion was likely to have an adverse effect on the war effort of Canada, the United Kingdom, the United States and other United Nations.

Morale of armies of the United Nations might be "very seriously affected were there to be a general discussion which went into a number of matters that have taken place in the past, the discussion of which might provoke, as I say, a very serious condition of affairs if begun at this time," he said.

CONFERRED PRIVATELY

Mr. Graydon was one of the three opposition party leaders who Tuesday conferred privately with Mr. King on Gen. McNaughton's leave.

Mr. Graydon said it was his opinion Defence Minister Ralston had not told the "whole story" when he said the general had been relieved of his command for health reasons. The responsibility rested with the government as to whether the "whole story" would be told, Mr. Graydon said.

Mr. King said the government did not intend to discuss the matter further unless some opposition members or persons outside the house, by statements they made, rendered it necessary for the government to make further disclosures.

Speaking of Tuesday's conference among opposition party leaders and defence ministers at Mr. King's invitation, Mr. Graydon said he had a responsibility to parliament and the country.

FULL STORY NOT TOLD

The correspondence and documents brought out at the conference showed him the house had not been given the full story of the granting of leave to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and relieving him of command of the Canadian Army overseas.

He said the responsibility rests now where it always rested—with the government.

Mr. Graydon said he felt he had discharged his obligation when he said he believed the house had not been given the whole story by Col. Ralston. It was up to the government now to decide whether to disclose the "whole story."

The government alone was in possession of the background and facts. The responsibility belonged to it alone and none could share it.

Mr. King in reply quoted the initial press announcement, approved by the government, which announced in December that Gen. McNaughton was being granted leave due to ill-health.

In making the announcement, he said, the government had felt it would not be advisable to go behind what was stated in the medical reports and bring up anything to do with Gen. McNaughton's command in the field. It had not been indicated any useful purpose would be served.

HAD ANSWER READY

Col. Ralston himself would have preferred to discuss "all phases" of the matter to the satisfaction of all house members, said Mr. King. When he was being pressed by Mr. Graydon on Monday to say whether there were other factors than ill-health in the leave granted the General, he had had his answer ready in his hand.

Mr. King said he had then intervened to suggest that opposition leaders meet him and read correspondence concerning the leave granted the general.

The prime minister said he had given reasons for his intervention in the discussion. The government's actions had been based on a desire to protect the war effort, as other United Nations as well as Canada were interested.

He had shown the party leaders the correspondence and left it to them to act as "their own consciences may dictate." He had placed no restrictions on them as to the use of the information received.

PREPARE FOR ATTACK

Members knew that preparations "are being made on a vast scale for the invasion of Europe." They had to ask themselves whether further discussion of the incident would have an adverse effect on the war effort of Canada and the other United Nations.

"I believe the morale of the armies might be seriously affected were there to be further discussion of a number of matters which have taken place in the past," said Mr. King.

The government had "nothing to hide or conceal."

In the general interest, however, the government proposed to discuss the matter no further unless it was required to make further disclosures by statements made by opposition members or by persons outside the house.

AGREES WITH KING

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he agreed with Mr. King but thought the remarks in the house today would raise certain questions in the public mind. It might be desirable to have a committee of the house go into the matter, with Gen. McNaughton before it.

Col. Ralston said he did not like Mr. Graydon's statement he (Col. Ralston) had "not told the whole story." It left an impression he was keeping something back.

The fact was, he said, that he had distinctly stated he was not telling the whole story but was prepared to do so.

Mr. Graydon replied he did not wish the minister to "take umbrage" at his remarks. He simply had wanted to tell the house his conclusions after seeing the correspondence at the meeting with Mr. King.

"My conclusions, in fact, are the same as the minister's," he said.

Col. Ralston had previously admitted some facts were not revealed, Mr. Graydon continued.

RAYMOND PROTESTS

Maxime Raymond, leader of the Bloc Populaire, said he felt it "unfair" for the Prime Minister to invite only leaders of "certain groups" to see the correspondence about Gen. McNaughton. All groups should be entitled to information given to any group or member.

The leaders of the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F., and the New Democracy parties had been invited to read the correspondence, Mr. Raymond said, after one party leader asked if there was anything besides ill-health connected with the leave of absence granted the General.

Since the invitation followed such a question, he wished to repeat it, he said.

Mr. King replied that the government and the official opposition were considered to be handling the country's affairs. He had invited the C.C.F. and New Democracy leaders because they had been recognized as party leaders when they were elected. Hon. Grote Stirling (P.C.—Yale) who also attended was a former defence minister and a privy councillor.

Because a new party came into existence in a by-election it did not follow it had certain privileges, Mr. King said.

BLACKMORE'S OPINION

John Blackmore, New Democracy leader, said new parties were formed because the people could not get what they wanted from those in power. Mr. King could expect to see new parties develop as long as he failed to give the people what they wished.

Mr. Blackmore said that if the House wanted to discharge its responsibility "we will discontinue discussion of the McNaughton affair."

There was applause from the government benches.

Even before the conference of party leaders which he attended Tuesday, Mr. Blackmore said, he had felt the matter of Gen. McNaughton's leave should "be left pretty well alone, leaving it to the government in power."

RUMORS RAMPANT

Parliament buildings were buzzing with rumors as to what the opposition leaders learned from the records, the chief report being that a prominent British officer had objected to Gen. McNaughton's leadership in manoeuvres last year and had opposed him leading the Canadians when they actually go into battle.

According to these rumors, the British officer was not Sir Bernard Montgomery, who has been chosen as commander-in-chief of British armies in the western invasion force. Previously, there had been reports that Gen. Montgomery and Gen. McNaughton had been in disagreement.

Gen. Montgomery's return to Britain from the Mediterranean theatre was comparatively recent, it was said, whereas presumably the British representation was last fall.

HOUSING PROBLEM

During continued discussion on the $3,650,000,000 war appropriation resolution, N. J. M. Lockhart (P.C.-Lincoln) said the housing of soldiers' dependents was a problem. When Wartime Housing was started some houses were made available to soldiers' dependents but there had been difficulty in meeting the demand. Now production in some wartime plants had been greatly reduced and the employees who had used wartime houses had been laid off.

Col. Ralston should seek more latitude in providing wartime houses to soldiers' dependents and to men who had returned from service overseas.

Col. Ralston said housing was a community responsibility. Wartime Housing Ltd., as a government company, gave the use of houses on a temporary basis when the need was great.

"Not Much to Tell"

Here's How One Canadian Did Job on Berlin Raid

In the following dispatch Louis V. Hunter, Canadian Press war correspondent accredited to the R.C.A.F. in Britain, tells how one Canadian airman did his "job" in Tuesday night's record R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. blow at Berlin. But it really is the story of the thousands of Allied airmen who battered the German capital anew.—EDITOR.

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

A CANADIAN BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Flt. Lt. Jimmy Hanson of Westmount, Que., pushed a handful of coins along a shiny Shove Ha'Penny board yesterday and said: "There isn't much I can tell you, I'm afraid. I'm not very colorful."

He was in one of the 22 R.C.A.F. planes that took off at dusk Tuesday from this Canadian bomber group station in the English Midlands and helped give Berlin its heaviest blasting of the war.

He was gunnery leader of the Canadian Goose Squadron in the great attack and to give a picture of the young men who took part in the raid, and of the work they are doing night after night,, the questioning continued despite Hanson's reiterated, "There's not much I can tell you."

WHAT "WORK" LIKE

Here is what his work—and that of about 6,000 airmen—was like Tuesday.

It was a 12-hour job beginning for him and his companions early in the afternoon.

They had a "rough idea" before the briefing that Berlin was the target. But the briefing at which the "milk run"—as the trip to Berlin now is known—was confirmed as the target was really the start of the day's activities for them. Then things began to hum.

The greatest bomber assault in the history of air warfare had begun.

Only the "odd town" en route to Berlin shot up some stuff at them.

Pathfinder markers over the target were "bang on."

HEAVY ACK-ACK FIRE

At first the anti-aircraft fire was light. Jimmy was in the first wave of attackers and as the defences "got on our track the flak was the heaviest I have ever seen and reminded me of the old Ruhr days."

The Lancaster spent about 10 minutes over the target area and Jimmy said that was long enough "but yes."

The fliers couldn't see the ground because of clouds but even as the first wave turned homeward a big red glow was reflected on the clouds—Berlin burning and sizzling below.

On the way back, anti-aircraft batteries in a couple of towns were active and fighter flares were seen but Jimmy's aircraft was not hit.

The day's work ended around 12:10 a.m. today when the skipper came in for a perfect landing. Then Jimmy went to bed for a few hours' sleep.

Jottings From House Session

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley said yesterday in reply to a question in the commons that the government plans to bring down "as soon as possible" legislation to amend the Bank act.

A transport department reply tabled for W. K. Esling (P.C., Kootenay West) said the government has not considered any change in its policy of governmental control of international and trans-Atlantic air lines as a result of the recent Commonwealth Air conference in London.

The government has no intention of purchasing large farms and placing more than one soldier settler on such farms, it was reported in a reply tabled for F. D. Shaw (N.D., Red Deer).

Payments for 1943 under the Wheat Acreage Reduction act totalled $21,160,192, Agriculture Minister Gardiner reported in a reply for Lt. Col. J. A. Ross (P.C., Souris). Division among the provinces was: Alberta, $6,373,220; Saskatchewan, $11,116,650, and Manitoba $3,670,321. Outstanding claims will be paid by March 15, the minister said.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said total storage charges paid and accrued on grain in terminal elevators by the Canadian Wheat Board during the crop year 1942-43 was $6,233,418. Terminal storage payments in the present crop year to Jan. 31, were $627,480.

The minister was answering a question by E. E. Perley (P.C., Qu'Appelle) who also asked the storage payments to each elevator company. Mr. MacKinnon said the payments to companies were not readily available.

Reform Overdue

REGINA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—F. W. Townley-Smith, president of the Saskatchewan School Trustees Association, in an address to the association's annual convention yesterday, said that educational reform in Saskatchewan is long overdue. Rural areas especially are suffering lack of educational facilities for their children, he said.

Most Deserters From Army Are Drafted Troops

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Figures given in the house of commons yesterday by Defence Minister Ralston indicated that of an increase of about 2,000 in total army desertions since last May more than half were desertions by men called up for compulsory service.

In the nine months ended last Dec. 31, the minister said, desertions resulted in a loss of 1,500 men among call-up personnel. He said the number of desertions among call-up troops has been "fairly even" during the last three months, with the number of call-up men apprehended or reporting back to the army after being listed as deserters. Accordingly it was indicated that the net loss of 1,500 men at Dec. 31 remains.

INCREASE OF 2,000

Tuesday in the house Col. Ralston said there had been an increase of about 2,000 since last May in the total number of desertions among general service and call-up troops combined.

Col. Ralston also said there now are about 11,000 deserters from the army in both general service and call-up categories.

The figures for desertions among call-up troops cover a period two months longer than the figures for total army desertions. However, making allowance for this time difference, desertions among call-up troops since May apparently still would be above the 1,000 mark.

Thus they would amount to more than half the increase of 2,000 in total army desertions for the same period. The minister said Tuesday there had been only a "few" overseas desertions. General service personnel in Canada number some 145,000. Callup troops number about 73,000.

19,000 MEN ENROLLED

Col. Ralston said yesterday 19,000 men had been enrolled for service after call-up, during the last nine months of 1943. Men who later enlisted for general service numbered 3,000. Discharges, desertions and deaths accounted for another 8,000.

The total of men enrolled for compulsory training at March 31 was about 65,000. Following the general service enlistments and the losses due to various causes, the strength at Dec. 31 had been increased to only 73,000 although 19,000 had actually been called in the nine months.

The effective strength had been further reduced to 68,000 by leaves for essential work granted to 5,000 call-up men.

Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver South) asked if the 1,500 deserters still were missing.

FLOW FAIRLY EVEN

"They may be missing and other men may be picked up," replied Col. Ralston. "There has been a more or less even flow in the last three months."

The information on the men called for service under the National Resources Mobilization Act was given in response to a question by Mr. Green. He said Col. Ralston had told the house about 70,000 men had been called for service and of that number 50,000 could be sent abroad to fight if the necessity arose and the authority were given by the government.

"The same figure of 50,000 fighting men was given about a year ago by the minister," said Mr. Green. ". . . A year has passed, 25,000 more men have been called up under the N.R.M.A., and yet today we have only 50,000 men, the minister says, ready to fight."

Col. Ralston said the "wastage"—represented by enlistments for general service and desertions, discharges and deaths—had been 11,000 in the nine months ending Dec. 31. This indicated there would not be much increase in the number of N.R.M.A. troops available for overseas service even with the 12,000 to be taken in this year.

MAINTAIN STRENGTH

The call-up provision this year was intended for maintenance of present strength, but the number might be increased if casualties are not in accordance with calculations, or it might be decreased.

Canadian Junior Officers Will Be Loaned to British Army Under New System

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—A large number of Canadian junior officers will be loaned to the British army under a plan to go into effect immediately, Defence Minister Ralston told the Commons yesterday.

The Canadian army, he said, has a surplus of officers. This would allow many officers to get battle experience who would otherwise have little prospect for some time to come.

The transfers would be voluntary on the part of the officers and for a minimum period of three months. Their service would be restricted to the Mediterranean and European theatres in order to facilitate their return to Canadian service later.

INFANTRY OFFICERS

All those loaned would be trained infantry officers and the proposal was that there be one captain for every eight lieutenants loaned.

For security reasons, Col. Ralston said, he would not state the number, but a definite limit had been fixed.

While with British units the officers would receive pay, allowances and pension rights from Canada, on the Canadian scale. They would not lose opportunity for promotion but while they were with the British army promotions would be made on British recommendation, subject to approval by Canadian Army authorities.

Howard Green (P.C.—Vancouver South) asked why some Canadian officers should not be trained in the Pacific area with the Australians, since Canadian soldiers would eventually be fighting against the Japanese.

CONSIDER PLANS

Col. Ralston replied that he was making no announcement, but some arrangements were being considered.

Col. Ralston said Canada had what might be regarded as a reserve of some 6,000 officers—"in other words, subalterns, a great many officers who have just been promoted, but I included older officers as well."

Earlier Mr. Green asked about the retirement of officers and Col. Ralston said the "hard fact" had to be faced that some officers compared with others were not advantageously employed and could not do the job as well. Boards were sorting out officers and seeking to find the best men for the job. There had been and would be a substantial reduction in officers.

Some younger officers were involved. During the last week he had signed 10 retirements for officers from 21 to 30 years. They could not do the job and it was felt they should serve somewhere else. However, most retirements were due to age.

1,077 OFFICERS RETIRED

"In the three months from October to Jan. 26, 1,077 officers have been retired and of that number 212 were recommended for retirement for reasons of age," the minister said.

Of the others, the majority probably were seniors in point of age who were replaced by younger men. There had been a "distinct lowering" in the number of jobs available. Boards made sure there were no jobs men could do before they were retired.

Those retired were better off going back to civilian life now than "when the rush comes," Col. Ralston said.

Quebec House Makes Protest On Imperialism

QUEBEC, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The legislative assembly yesterday unanimously adopted a motion, proposed by Rene Chaloult, Lotbiniere member until recently of the Bloc Populaire, protesting against what was termed Lord Halifax's "new imperialism and dangerous tendencies," and began debate on motion proposed by Union Nationale opposition leader Maurice Duplessis, concerning immigration in the province of Quebec.

(Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said in Toronto last month that all the dominions of the British Empire should tighten imperial ties and commit themselves towards a common international policy.)

RECALLS STATEMENTS

Georges Potvin (L.-Roberval) recalled the recent statements made by Lord Halifax and Marshal Smuts (prime minister of South Africa) and said their statements were "coldly" received in Ottawa.

"If the Westminster statute has a significance and if the statements made during imperial conferences during the last 20 years mean something, it is impossible to accept and to conciliate with our own interests a one-direction policy engaging the whole empire," he said.

Mr. Duplessis proposed that correspondence relative to immigration in the province of Quebec be tabled.

He said "all parties have sinned in the mater of immigration by allowing the entry of immigrants which will never become Canadians, with a true Canadian mentality." He said the first duty of the provincial and federal governments was to assure work and comfort to demobilized soldiers and employees of war industries after the war.

PEOPLE WARNED

He then recalled a meeting he held at Ste. Claire, Dorchester County, last fall and said he warned the population against a campaign to favor immigration in the post-war period.

He read a letter which, he said, was addressed to Rabbi J. Schwartz of Montreal, in which it was said that "the Zionist international fraternity would support financially all Liberal candidates who agree openly or secretly to support in the House of Commons the government scheme for the establishment on Quebec farms of 100,000 Jewish refugees from central Europe."

Mr. Duplessis added that the letter was "authentic" and that Rabbi Schwartz was director of the Zionist Society of Canada. He said that the letter, signed by H. L. Roscovitz, was dated Oct. 14, 1943 and was received at the Mount Royal hotel in Montreal. He also showed an envelope on which were shown stamps and marks of its passing through the Montreal post office.

(After Mr. Duplessis first read the letter at the Ste. Claire meeting, Rabbi Schwartz denied receiving such a letter, and Mr. Hartt and other Jewish leaders issued statements saying the letter did not originate in Jewish circles and that they had no knowledge of the H. L. Roscovitz mentioned.)

Alberta Airman Receives Award

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—(AP)—An R.C.A.F. mid-upper gunner who beat off an enemy fighter on his first operational trip even though one of his machine guns was put out of action is among four Air Force personnel to receive awards for gallantry, Air Force headquarters announced last night.

He is Sgt. R. E. Quale of Beverley Station, Sask., awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal for his cool and skillful handling of his guns during a recent raid on Madgeburg.

The R.C.A.F. also announced award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Flt. Lt. G. W. MacDonald, of Wanham, Alta., and the D.F.M. to Flt. Sgt. Alexander Clibbery, of Portage La Prairie, Man.

MacDonald is cited for his work as a bomber pilot in two theatres of war, Clibbery for piloting his badly damaged bomber safely back from a raid on Magdeburg and Irwin for giving evasive directions to his pilot through a hole in the fuselage after his bomber's astrodome had been shot away and the gun turrets put out of action.

The Multi-Party Tradition

Quebec nationalists who failed to succeed in a bid for the leadership of the notorious Bloc Populaire are said to be considering the formation of still another party. This will be headed, it is believed, by Rene Chaloult, who attained such unenviable prominence in his campaign against the referendum on national military service in 1942.

Now there is no provision in the Canadian constitution against the formation of new political parties. British tradition, however, appears to hold that the two-party system offers quite adequate opportunity for political expression, and that the establishment of new third or fourth or fifth parties frequently is based on pique, resentment or sectional selfishness.

At any rate, it has been abundantly shown that jealousy and selfishness, expressing themselves in a multiplicity of parties, were the downfall of modern France.

It seems odd, then, that the people of Quebec, pretending to despise republican France and all its works, should seem anxious to fall into the same tradition of political confusion as ruined the republic.

Sectionalism and jealousy and ill-will, one may presume, bear the same fruits everywhere.

A Start on Refunding

The city council has given first reading to a by-law authorizing the raising of $1,770,000 by the issue and sale of new debentures, in a refinancing operation. This apparently was the extent to which the bond dealers' association were found willing to agree to refunding at present.

The arrangement will be welcome to the taxpayers in so far as it reduces interest charges, though the amount is small in comparison to the $26,000,000 of outstanding city debentures. It is welcome also as arousing a hope that further representations may secure consent to further and larger refinancing operations.

At least the point is conceded that 3 per cent is a fair rate of interest on Edmonton debentures, in view of the present and prospective rental value of money. This establishes a basis for further negotiations with a view to refunding as much as possible of the remaining outstanding issues.

There is no prospect whatever that the holders of Edmonton bonds will be able to reinvest their money when these mature at better rates of interest and with as good security. This is admitted by the consent of the bond dealers to "exchange" some early maturing issues for 3 per cent's. The fact should count for something when further refunding proposals are made.

Utility Profits Up

Edmonton's street railway produced a surplus of more than $26,000 last year, a betterment of $40,000 from the $17,000 deficit of the year before, though a larger amount of earnings was set aside as reserves.

There is no mystery about this sharp reversal of the financial outcome. The cars last year were crowded; that explains it. Because of heavy traffic, Edmonton people have the advantage of the cheapest street railway service on the continent, without the system losing money.

The other utilities earned large surpluses, as they regularly do. Together these enterprises, after setting aside larger renewal reserves than usual, paid $1,170,811 into the city treasury in taxes and profits. Without this contribution, property and business taxes for the year would have had to be 20 mills higher in order to produce the same amount of city revenue.

The amounts set aside by the utilities for reserves during the year totalled $1,343,000. Adding the balance on hand at the end of 1942 and deducting the amount spent on renewals last year left approximately $1,600,000 in the reserve funds at the close of 1943.

The prospect is that the utilities will have another prosperous year in 1944, net earnings perhaps even exceeding those of 1943. The city is still growing and employment is general. These are the conditions in which the use of water, light, power, telephones and street car service expands.

Less Food for Nazis

Less thrilling than the war news of the day, but rivalling it in importance, is the fact that this spring the Russans will be able to sow crops on 100,000 or 125,000 square miles of their most productive land from which they have gathered little or nothing in the last three seasons.

A strip of territory 800 miles long and averaging more than 100 miles wide, lying along the western frontier from the Baltic to the Black Sea has been wrested from the enemy by the Red army, and can be turned back into production by the Russians, so far as manpower and other conditions will permit.

This great belt was overrun by the Nazis in the summer of 1941. The retreating Russians may have carried away some of the immature grain and root crops, but not more than a fraction. The fighting front was far enough to the east that the enemy was no doubt able to sow a good part of the area and reap substantial harvests in the falls of 1942 and 1943.

What it meant to the Russians to be deprived of at least two full crops from this territory—including much of the Ukraine wheatlands—can be hazily understood when it is noted that the area compares fairly closely with that of the wheat belt of western Canada. The invaders and the people back in the Reich of course fared well in the same degree that the owners of the land suffered scarcity. In broad terms the Hitlerite forces lived largely on the country they occupied.

The situation will be reversed during the coming year, for it seems now certain that the enemy will be pushed well beyond the Russian border by seeding time. This reverse will operate in two directions. The Russians will have more to eat, and the Nazis less. What may be left of Hitler's eastern armies, together with the civilians in the Reich, will have to be fed from crops grown in Germany, northern France and perhaps western Poland. Belts in the Fuehrer's empire will have to be drawn tighter, while belts in Russia can be loosened a bit.

This shortening of the food supply may be as severe a blow to the Hitler power as the loss of his Italian ally. Hungry soldiers cannot fight and hungry war-workers cannot turn out munitions.

Another school house has been burned in a Doukhobor settlement west of Nelson. It went up in smoke just after a band of the "peculiar people" had camped in the building for three days. As British Columbia is demanding that the Japs be expelled, how about asking Stalin if he would mind taking back the Douks? At least the Japs do not seem to have had school house fires as a regular feature in their community life.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier, "Bloc" member for Portneuf, fared worse than the C.C.F. with his sub-amendment to the address at Ottawa. The Dr. wanted the members to record regret that the Government had not suspended the military call-up and had not stopped participating in the mutual aid arrangement among the United Nations. Only 7 of them did so, while 171 voted down his proposition. That probably represents fairly well the proportion of people in Canada who don't care what happens to the country or themselves.

All Social Security Depends on Financial Reform

Nationalize Policy of Bank of Canada Is First Need

By G. G. McGEER, K.C., M.P., Liberal, Vancouver-Burrard

The Dominion of Canada is now launched upon a definite and far-reaching program of planned economy. Indeed while the war is still in its most critical stages Canada as a nation has accepted social security as the main objective of our national life.

The program aims to establish a national minimum of social security and human welfare contemplating employment for all who are able and willing to work; standards of nutrition and housing adequate to secure the health of the whole population; and National insurance against privation resulting from unemployment, accident, sickness, death of the bread-winner and old age.

Rehabilitation

The program includes the demobilization, rehabilitation and re-establishment in civil life of the men and women in the armed forces and in war industries. Plans for the rehabilitation of veterans are already well under way. Unemployment insurance is in partial operation and a limited system of old age pensions has been in effect since 1927. The remainder of the plan has yet to be developed and enacted. Upon the success or failure of this vast program will depend the contentment and the security of Canadians in the post-war period.

The greatest danger to the success of the plan will be found in the failure of those responsible for its execution to grasp the magnitude of the annual cost involved. Whether or not we can face with confidence and maintain in unbroken continuity the circulation of the medium of exchange required to bring such a program into effective and successful operation will require great changes in our attitudes to the power of the nation to finance its own going concern activity.

If we revert to the theories of orthodox finance that dominated our national economy from 1920 to 1939 such a program is doomed to failure. The suspicion that in some quarters we are already commencing to revert to the theories and practices that brought about the boom and depression years of the interwar period is not without foundation.

National Income

In a recent interview Dr. W. A. McIntosh, special assistant to the deputy minister of finance, stated that Canada's national income could be maintained at a level between six and six and one-half billion dollars annually in the post-war period, which would support a tax recovery of two billion a year which would liquidate the war debt and sustain the social securities planned, including the needs of veterans.

Just what such a figure means, few are able to appreciate. A national income measured in terms of a lump sum can be absolutely meaningless, for it is not so much in the total of the national income as in its distribution among the entire population that the social security and economic well-being of the individual is to be found. And it is quite possible that the demands of the program outlined will total very considerably more than an income of 6 and one-half billion dollars a year. The national income has risen from four billion in 1938 to nine billion at the present time.

World Trade

In his interview Dr. McIntosh stressed the restoration and expansion of world trade and a repudiation of the policies of economic nationalism and self-sufficiency rampant among the nations of the world in the 1930's. He assumed that a public works program, including the St. Lawrence waterways and a 400-mile railway in the Peace River district, and some constitutional readjustment between the Dominion and the provinces to give the Dominion more financial elbow room would be required.

Unfortunately these were the theories dominating when Canada along with the other nations of the British Empire Commonwealth, the United States and the other democracies throughout the world found themselves in the pitiable condition of artificial bankruptcy and self-imposed national weakness that was in truth the cause not only of the depression but of the war itself.

Certainly in the years immediately preceding the war our financiers and treasury officials were convinced that the depression could only be broken by improvements in world trade and the centralization of the taxing powers of the provinces and municipalities in the federal government. That was the rock upon which the Sirois Conference broke up in the Dominion. The type of thinking offered by Dr. McIntosh's conclusions indicates that the Department of Finance has yet to bring itself abreast of the times.

Conceptions Changed

In this war we have had to change every concept of war and of financing that existed until we were engulfed in this global struggle. Certainly if we are going to win the peace the vast changes in our attitude to money and foreign trade that this war has established as essential to the maintenance of our national security must be continued if we are to enjoy the social security and economic well-being that our Canadian-planned economy envisages.

The fundamental change to be made is in our attitude toward the nation's financial powers and responsibilities. Prior to this war we have always placed money first and humanity second. Human freedom and human health have been made secondary to the protection of accumulated money wealth and investment. The wages of money have been made first and the wages of men came second.

In a word, Finance has always been on the bridge of the ship of state. The elected representatives of the people in city councils, provincial legislatures and national parliaments and the officials of government have always been dependent on the views and the attitudes of financial authorities. The government, in any of its departments, was never free to say what it could and intended to do unless finance which always held the veto power would agree that the expenditure involved in government action could be undertaken. This often sinister encroachment of the financial upon the administrate point of view in government business and industry has given the modern revolutionist his best arguments.

Medium

Surely if we have learned anything at all during this war it is that Government is now able to provide whatever volume of medium of exchange may be required to sustain a much higher standard of living than has ever been enjoyed in the past. To achieve the objectives of the program now put forward by the Government we must make the financial point of view submissive to the administrative point of view. We must recognize that the circulation of the medium of exchange constitutes the economic life-stream of the nation. And we should know by now from past experience than an economic life-sream composed largely of debt is certain to bind the health and the freedom of the people.

The first step in the success of the program is the complete nationalization of the policy of the Bank of Canada. The Bank of Canada must be empowered to supply over and above the receipts from sound and just taxation, the entire financial needs of the federal government, whatever they may be.

Public Needs

The Bank of Canada must also be established as a sub-operation in each of the nine provinces of the Dominion, and each of these sub-branches must be empowered to supply the provincial and municipal governments with their financial needs.

With such a financial base, municipal, provincial and federal governments could work in union and co-operation to make it possible for every Canadian to enjoy the abundance that Canadians have proven their capacity to produce, distribute and use. In no other way can we escape the slavery and stagnation of unpayable debt and confiscatory taxation. We must break away from the old order that always left us short of money in peacetime and abundantly supplied with money whenever the pressure of war came into being.

There is as yet however no indication that this fundamental lesson has been learned by our Department of Finance at Ottawa.

Anzac Groups Draw "Pacific Charter"

Object to Present Play of Power Politics in Far East

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—The Australian minister of external affairs, Dr. H. V. Evatt, referred to the Australia-New Zealand Agreement, 1944, which was signed at Canberra on January 21, as "a Pacific Charter." The agreement, from the full text available in Ottawa, shows that it is, indeed, a statement of aspirations along the lines of the Atlantic Charter as its principles might be applied to the Pacific. The task to which Australia and New Zealand have set their hands is simply to erect, under their joint initiative, a structure of democratic rights in the Pacific along the lines of the Atlantic declaration of Jan. 1, 1942.

The fact that Australia and New Zealand have agreed to follow the line of full collaboration and unity of action in matters of common concern has deep significance for the British Commonwealth of Nations, as Prime Minister Curtin intimated in a speech at the opening of the Canberra conference on Jan. 18.

Drift Apart

In the past these two dominions have not developed co-operation to an effective stage. The drift between them has been apart rather than together, in the past 25 years. When I was in Wellington, New Zealand, early in December, the first Australian high commissioner to New Zealond, Hon. T. G. D. Alton, had just arrived. In their external relations, the Pacific dominions have just begun to orientate policies both in respect to each other and in respect to new conditions in the Pacific. The common ground between them, as the Canberra Agreement shows, is extensive.

The agreement contains a specific claim that Australia and New Zealand should have full membership at the top level of Allied organizations dealing with the future armistice and the making of the peace. These clauses assume that Australia and New Zealand shall act in unison and with prior consultation on matters of common concern in the Pacific; but they in no way support an interpretation that they will rely upon the technique of a common voice from all British nations.

Vital Interests

Clause 7 reads: "The two governments declare that they have vital interests in all preparations for any armistice ending the present hostilities or any part thereof, and also in arrangements subsequent to any such armistice, and agree that their interests should be protected by representation at the highest level on all armistice planning and executive bodies."

Clause 14 reads: "The two governments regard it as a matter of cardinal importance that they should both be associated not only in the membership but also in the planning and establishment of the general international organization referred to in the Moscow Declaration of October, 1943, which organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all peace-loving states and open to membership by all such states, large or small, for the maintenance of international peace and security."

In this clause, the reference to the Moscow Declaration found an echo in the recent statement by Prime Minister King of Canada, in which he indicated Canada would rely on membership in the future world organization, rather than on common policies among British nations, for its hopes of future world peace.

Regionalism

With Clause 14 in mind, the emphasis found in the Australia-New Zealand Agreement upon regionalism may be fitted easily into the concept of a future association al all peace-minded nations in keeping the peace. The Pacific dominions, from their declaration, show readiness to assume responsibilities for keeping the future peace of the Pacific. They will undertake the job of policing their region of the world, together or in collaboration with other nations.

This feature has special importance to Australia and New Zealand, for from it the logical deduction may be made that these Dominions, as policemen, would maintain important sectors of their war industries in future. This would be a matter of high aconomic importance to these countries. The Agreement also defines "the doctrine of trusteeship" as the principle that should be followed in dealing with colonial territories in the Pacific.

Native Peoples

"The main purpose of the trust," the Agrement reads, "is the welfare of the native peoples and their social, economic and political development." The Pacific dominions, it is evident, will expect to draw some of their own future economic development from closer association with the territories in the southwest and south Pacific region. They ask that change in the control of sovereignty of any islands of the Pacific be made only by agreement in which they, the dominions, have concurred. The agency of native welfare would be a South Seas Regional Commission.

In regard to aviation, Australia and New Zealand have laid down a definite policy. They have, more than any other governments so far, laid their cards on the table. Within the terms of the agreement, they are asking for an international air transport organization to operate international trunk lines. Failing this, as a second choice, they would be prepared to co-operate in a purely British world flying service.

Action by Australia and New Zealand to work in unison where their interests merge does not, as Prime Minister Fraser remarked in his comment on the agreement, result in any departure from the principles of the British Commonwealth. The New Zealand prime minister made it clear that his country's policy had not deviated in any way from reliance on the principle of collective security to which New Zealand, above all other countries, has given unwavering allegiance. "Piecemeal preservation of peace is not a practicable proposition," he said. The country which demanded effective action by the League of Nations in defence of Ethiopia in 1935 has found no reason to choose any other system of world security.

Power Politics

The "Pacific Charter" drawn by Australia and New Zealand, it is plain, proposes to end forever the era of power politics in the Pacific which has brought disaster so close to those dominions. Its terms would be easily joined with the broader scheme of world organization proposed in the Moscow Declaration, for they have obviously been written under the influence of that proposal.

Comments from leaders in the dominions indicate that the pattern of new foreign policy is the following three lines: adherence to the British system; reliance on a future world organization; and conduct of their own affairs as completely autonomous nations.

Dr. Evatt even described the Pacific dominions as "also trustees for British interests and British civilization in the Pacific." There is a sphere in which regional interests are a first concern to neighbor nations, and in the Agreement Australia and New Zealand have defined these interests. But they leave no doubt of their hopes for a world organization in which they, as members, may play their part in maintaining peace and promoting human welfare.

New World by Jail Builders

Specialists Plan Many Improvements for the Future

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK.—The Van Dorn Iron Works Co., of Cleveland, has a very interesting idea for that brave new world of the future, attractively presented in a page display advertisement, with art, in one of our more pretentious magazines of business and politics.

Westbrook Pegler

"Maybe," says the Van Dorn Iron Works Co., "there's a post-war idea for you. The largest jail builders in America can help you plan better construction for your post-war products.

"You never expected to find a solution to one of your post-war problems in a jail cell, did you? But there's one here for you if you are looking for new ways of building endurance into your products of the future. Van Dorn has been building jail cells since 1878. Today they're found in leading prisons from Sing Sing to San Quentin, and from Winnipeg to Cristobal. Our engineers pioneered the use of tool-resisting steel for jails and have since developed many of the most impregnable metal designs ever produced. Our interlocked and counter-locked cell construction is recognized as providing maximum strength and rigidity. The fully selective keyless locking device which is the standard of efficiency and safety for remote control of sliding cell doors, is a Van Dorn development."

Specialty

This took me rather by surprise, as it may take you, because it had never occurred to me that jail-building was a specialty in which anyone took such pride. Still, we should have known because, after all, Sing Sing and San Quentin, at least in their newer buildings, are handsome expressions of a highly specialized ability and interest, and a firm which has been building prisons since 1-878 naturally would look back like any other company with a noble tradition of improving achievement in any other field. The illustration depicts a giant hand holding aloft on the fingertips a gem of a cell, apparently for single occupancy, plain to the point of austerity but obviously a quiet challenge even to Basil Sanchart, last reported in Alcatraz, who had boasted that Joliet could not hold him and proved his point by going away for a trip. This hand and this chaste apartment are imposed on an outline map of the United States with Van Dorn jails and prisons dotted here and there such as Auburn, N.Y., with 1,514 cells, Maryland Penitentiary, with 520, Nebraska State prison with 301 and San Quentin 800.

Might I say, however, to the Van Dorn people that for all their understandable pride in their work and their eagerness to help in building the brave new world of the future, there is something slightly pessimistic in their almost joyous assumption that the United States will then need more and stronger jails! Have they any particular individuals in mind as prospective tenants, considering the fact that Hitler, Mussolini, Goering, Goebbels, Himmler and the blood-guilty Japanese will be capital cases, or is it just that a company which has been building coolers for 65 years has formed a certain impression of human nature and is playing percentage for the future? Are they looking to a new school of war profiteers to boom business for them and do they anticipate in that brave new world there will be a new list of crimes adopted from the political codes of some of our good neighbors?

Armor Plate

At present, the Van Dorns are engaged 100 per cent in the production of armor plate for tanks and other war devices and there is an unspoken tribute to countless nameless yeggs, bandits, murderers and racketeers, many of them long dead, in the soft remark that it was the experience gained in housing them away which prepared this company to play its part in the winning of this war against man's inhumanity to man. They, too, then, were doing their bit, thousands of forgotten sinners, long before the men were born who are actually fighting the aggressors.

"You never expected to find a solution to one of your post-war problems in a jail cell, did you?"

Well, it is an idea, freedom from worship, freedom from want and fear, freedom from expense, debt and responsibility, social security, equality and limited freedom of expression, in a jail cell. Where else on earth could such be found?

Dill Is Homesick

Toronto Globe and Mail

There was more than a faint touch of the longing of an Irishman for his homeland in the speech of Field Marshal Sir John Dill, chief of the British Joint Staff Mission, before the Irish Protestant Benevolent Association here yesterday.

Here is one excerpt from his speech:

"Too long have I been absent from the shores of that lovely green island, with its gentle winds and soft skies; where wit and laughter mingle with that curious strain of sadness which is forever evident in the sweet strains of the songs that come from the Emerald Isle, where love is so strong and hate is so bitter. There the roses in the cheeks of the colleens are as the dew on the mountainside and require none of the embellishments of the cosmetic maker.

"My parents died when I was still very young and I went to live with an aunt in County Down—a lovely country of hills and lochs—have any of you ever seen Strangford Loch with all its islands where the seabirds nest? and have you seen the shores of that county where the mountains of Mourne sweep down to the sea?

"Life was very simple and we looked to the sun, the field and the waves for our pleasures in that land which the 20th Century with all its rush and strain had hardly touched. . . . Of course, the fact is, but you must keep it dark, the 20th Century had not, in fact, begun."

Officers and N.C.O.'s

From the R.C.A.F. Magazine Wings

A Canadian aircrew mess in which officers and N.C.O.'s of bomber crews eat and live together on a Canadian diet and in a home-like atmosphere, is part of a revolutionary and successful experiment being carried out by an R.C.A.F. heavy conversion unit overseas.

Air Force stations have always had separate messes for officers, N.C.O.'s, airmen and W.D.'s, and the members of each mess have always included flying personnel, ground crew, and administration types all living together. The new mess idea, catering exclusively to aircrew, provides for special diet where possible, increased recreation and entertainment, additional comforts and services.

The most interesting feature of the experiment is the spacious mess hall where the flying men eat four times a day. Eight-place crew tables are provided so the pilot of these four-engined bombers and the six other members of his crew sit and eat together along with one guest. The guest is usually an instructor, administration officer, a visiting officer or frequently the group captain commanding the station.

In this way, each member of the crew soon learns to understand the men with whom he flies as a combat team over enemy territory. Normally the officers and N.C.O.'s of a bomber crew live in separate messes and meet only at the hangar, at lectures or while flying together in the aircraft. The new scheme provides much more opportunity for crew co-operation and understanding.

"We have found in this experiment that the crew members get to know each other better, whether officer or sergeant, and more goodwill and understanding is promoted as well as crew co-operation," said GC. F. A. Sampson, of Ottawa, CO. of the station, who along with other leading officers, first developed the new type of mess.

It is estimated that accidents cost employers about $35 per worker a year.

3" INFANTRY MORTARS

One of the deadliest weapons of the infantrymen of any army is the mortar, heavy or light. Actually, the weapon is a light, portable artillery piece—demountable and usable from any terrain. It consists of a metal tube about three feet in length, with a heavy base and supported at an angle by a bipod. The missile looks like a small aerial bomb, pointed at one end and with tail fins at the other. The "bomb" is dropped tail-first down the leaning barrel, and "shoots itself" out of the muzzle in a high trajectory. Astounding accuracy can be attained with this seeming loutish weapon. The heavy, 3-inch mortar is used generally for firing high explosive bombs. The lighter, 2-inch mortar fires either high explosive or smoke bombs, the latter for screening the actions of Canadian infantrymen as they press the attack.

The common, ordinary house mosquito, given an old tin can partly filled with water and 10 days' time, will raise a family large enough to keep a neighborhood annoyed for weeks.

Visitors Attend Northern Meeting

GRANDE PRAIRIE — More than 100 persons attended the annual meeting of the Grande Prairie Board of Trade held here Friday. Edmonton visitors included J. A. MacArthur, general manager of the Northern Alberta Railways, James Walker, manager of the Edmonton branch, Canadian Bank of Commerce, and vice-president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and W. H. Sterne chairman of the wholesale division of the Edmonton group. President Bert Bessen presided.

Honored guest was Cpl. Jack Stiles, of Grande Prairie, the first war casualty to return home. Cpl. Stiles lost an arm in Sicily. Making his first official appearance since his election last week, Mayor P. E. Thorpe welcomed the visitors on behalf of the town.

L. J. Henning, secretary of the Board of Trade reviewed the activities of the last year which included the entertainment of many distinguished visitors, including Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta and Premier John Hart of British Columbia as well as a large party of members of Vancouver and Victoria Chambers of Commerce who visited the Peace River district.

P. J. Tooley described the great improvements made on the local airport and W. S. Scarth chairman of the agricultural committee and J. E. Thompson chairman of the transportation group outlined work done and the benefits that would ensue.

The Edmonton visitors congratulated the Grand Prairie froup on their accomplishments and expressed amazement at the development of the district.

Officers elected for the coming year were: T. H. J. Grierson, president; P. E. Thorpe, vice-president; executive: G. H. Cummings, R. McMillan, P. V. Croken, H. G. Bessent, L. C. Porteous, R. Cochrane, W. S. Scarth, J. E. Thomson, J. L. Henning, G. Chard, P. J. Tooley, N. Swallow and T. W. Lawlor.

For the second time within three months the Ross Lumber company saw mill at Smoky river was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Cause of the fire is unknown but it is being investigated.

The Married Nurses' association held a tea Saturday in aid of the Red Cross Prisoners of War fund.

GRIMSHAW.—O. Bratvold, district agriculturist, was present when the Notikewin young people organized a junior oats club. The group plans to work for betterment of seed and forage grains as well as the improvement of livestock. J. F. Cattanach was elected to the village council, succeeding H. A. Martin whose term of office has expired. Mrs. R. Turnbull was re-elected to the school board. A total of $50 was raised by the Ladies' Aid group from a tea and rummage sale held last week.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

THE string of 25 wins which the Manahan rink has put together in nine days of curling really will be something for the boys to shoot at. What makes the performance so remarkable though, is the fact that it was compiled in open competition, 17 games being in bonspiel draws with the other eight in the Consols playdowns.

On Six-Ounce Rod

Wallace McMillan of Winnipeg exhibits tyee salmon 53 inches long, 30 inches in girth, weight 60½ pounds, world record catch made by him in Campbell River, British Columbia. Monster was taken on six-ounce rod and 16-pound test line following 90-minute battle. Lure was home-made fly resembling Red Hackle and Silver Doctor. Fish being taken in fast-running water makes catch more remarkable.

Cliff's quartet no doubt will be favored over that of Glen Williams for the Alberta playoff and while a setback in curling is so often waiting on the next sheet, it appears altogether likely that another pair will be added in, the final to round out the total at 27.

And once more, just for the record, the other members of the winning rink are Wes Robinson (third), Lloyd McIntyre (second), and Harold MacDonald (lead). And what a grand job they have been doing, too!

Manahan also won the North Alberta British Consols in 1937, '38, '40 and '43. George Wanless of the Granite was the 1936 winner, while Billy Rose of Sedgewick came through in '39 and again in '41 and John Slavik of Viking took the honors in '42.

HERE AND THERE . . .

JOHN GULLEKSON'S best scoring effort in the city cage loop—28—was made in a game against U.S. Hospital and his lowest—10—against Latter Day Saints. Warren Taulbee made his 28 in a session with the Saints and his lowest, 6, against Quartermasters.

Paul Blawie of the Yanks posted his high of 25 in a joust with the Quartermasters and he recorded a low of 2 with Engineers. Artie Albert, top man for Quartermasters registered his best—18—against Engineers, and his low, also a 2, while playing the same club.

Cyril Thomas was really flying for the Canadians in last night's hockey attraction at 119 street rink. This boy, originally from Luscar, has come along fast and already ranks high as one of the smoothest working juniors ever to perform in this city. His three goals boosted his total points in league games to 19. Arnold Armstrong scored twice and lifted his total to 14.

There is talk going the rounds these days of Joe Louis paying a visit to Edmonton in the not too distant future. The latest name to be coupled with the Brown Bomber's is that of Freddie Mills, the Britisher. A fight between this pair in Edmonton would be quite okay, too.

Giants' Paschal Is Grid Rookie By Single Yard

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Bill Paschal, New York Giants' fullback, sat on the bench last Nov. 7 and watched his team probe for a footing in the mud against Detroit.

Finally he was sent in the game for one play. He clawed two yards through the Lions' line then came hobbling back to the bench.

But as Sundays came and went thereafter, those two yards became bigger and bigger. When the season was over, Paschal was credited as rookie No. 7 to win the National Football League ball-carrying championship, beating out Jack Hinkle, Phil-Pitt, halfback, by a scant yard—a race so close it was without precedent in the pro league's history.

Paschal, who joined the United States Army Air Force after a season of freshman ball for Georgia Tech and later was honorably discharged from the service, Wednesday was certified as the 1943 official champion.

His seemingly insignificant two-yard gain on one play boosted his toting total to 572 yards in 147 carries. Hinkle posted 571 in 116.

Pep Receives Army Discharge

BAINBRIDGE, Md., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Willie Pep, holder of the New York version of the world's featherweight championship, has been given a physical discharge from the navy, the Bainbridge naval training station public relations office said yesterday.

Attached to the discharge was a citation for good conduct, the office added.

Pep had been a patient in the hospital for more than a month.

To stretch its wheat supplies, Finland was forced to mix straw with bread flour during the First Great War.

Currie Shuts Out Navy 4-0 To Take Lead in Garrison Loop

CALGARY, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Currie Army took over sole possession of first place in the Central Alberta Garrison League by blanking a fighting Navy sextet 4-0 here Wednesday night. Pte. Ed McAneeley, Currie netminder, turned in a smart performance to mark up his first shutout of the season and was ably assisted by a rear guard that checked incoming forwards to perfection and quickly cleared loose pucks.

The sailors had some golden scoring chances, particularly in the final period, but due to ill luck and the agility of McAneeley were unable to take advantage of their chances.

Currie took a lead in the first 35 seconds of play on a goal by Pte. Bobby Carse, extended their margin to three in the second on markers by L-Cpl. Tony Desmarais and Pte. Max Bentley and added another in the third canto from the stick of Pte. Toad Klein.

Pte. Max Bentley's goal and assist allowed him to draw even with OS. Doug Cairns of Navy atop the league's high scoring list.

OS. Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, who took part in the recent series at Vancouver as a member of the St. Regis club, rejoined the Navy team but was too closely checked at all times to show any of his usual effectiveness.

Eastwood Beats Westglen by 6-4 School Hockey

Led by the rushing defenceman, Phil Joncas who scored two goals in the second period, Eastwood high school defeated Westglen 6-4 in a junior cup challenge hockey game played Wednesday night.

In the first period Burke took Klesko's rebound to score for Eastwood at the two minute mark. Play was fairly even until Clarke tallied unassisted at 17 minutes to make it 2-0.

The second period started out fast with Burke scoring on Harvey's pass before the one minute mark. Defenceman Cragg who played a standout game for Westglen staged a brilliant rush to bag one unassisted at the five minutes and Gerry Palmer of Westglen took Jack Brown's pass out to make it 3-2.

Joncas tallied on a lone effort to make it 4-2 and after Joe Meldrum cut the lead on an assist from Palmer, Joncas again drove one home with a sizzling shot from the blueline.

Meldrum opened the third period scoring for Westglen to cut the margin again as the score sheet read 5-4, but Klesko clinched the game with one scored at the 15 minute mark.

The losers took off their goalie near the end in an effort to get the tying markers, but were unable to drive another one past Hugh Slater, who played an outstanding game in the Eastwood nets.

Pittsburg Ties With Cleveland

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons played to a 1-1 deadlock last night before 1,800 fans in a fast, rough but clean American Hockey League game in which not a penalty was called.

Ross Knipfel rifled in the Hornet goal in the first period and Les Cunningham, veteran Baron centre, tied the point in the second period on a lightning-like shot from a few feet outside the crease.

Canadians Trim Navy 6-1 In Final of Junior Schedule

AFTER a scoreless first period, Canadian Athletic Club counted twice in the middle frame and then went on to trounce H.M.C.S. Nonsuch 6-1 in the last scheduled game of the City Junior Hockey League at 119 Street rink on Wednesday night.

As a result, the Canadians finish the regular season at the top of the league standings with a margin of 11 points over Navy. The E.A.C. team was third. Although no official dates have been announced for the playoffs, it is expected they will commence next week, possibly on Monday.

FIRST PERIOD EVEN

The teams played on fairly even terms during the opening period, but Canadians held a wide margin in the second and did most of the dangerous attacking in the last chapter. A total of 11 penalties were handed out, three of which went to Alex Boyco of the Navy and two each to Armstrong, Ingram and Frew. Samson and Green also were sent off.

There were neither goals nor penalties in the first period, with both clubs turning in good performances.

Canadians, however, took complete command in the early part of the second canto and play was chiefly in Navy territory. Bill Lancaster had to stop six shots before Alex Cavalli in the Canuck nets saw the puck once. All told, the Navy goalie handled 13 to Cavalli's six in the period.

LeCLAIR OPENS SCORING

First goal of the night came when Ivan Krook rushed from his own blue line, went around the Navy's right defence and passed back to Leo LeClair who beat Lancaster from about 15 feet out. This was LeClair's first start in junior company, having been brought up from the club's juveniles.

Thomas raised the count to 2-0 at 9:30, when he took Bob Causgrove's pass and fired a low shot from a few feet.

Armstrong's first goal came at 3:57 in the final period, Ken Cox supplying the pass. Thomas scored again six minutes later, Causgrove once more drawing an assist.

Thomas' third marker was netted after a play with Jim Slugg.

Jack Ingram counted for Navy when he backhanded a screened shot from just over the Canadian blue line. Jerry Dea had passed back to his team-mate.

Armstrong scored again just before the end of the game.

However, Gullekson whose average was 16.4, played in nine games during the season, one more than Taulbee. Earl Ayers, also of Engineers was third in "A" section with 13 points per game, while Artie Albert of Quartermasters was fourth with 12.3.

Now Unbeaten For 25 Games In Succession

DEFEATING Whit Matthews 13-8 and 11-1 in the best-of-three inter-section series, Cliff Manahan's rink won the North Alberta British Consols playdowns at the Royal Curling Club on Wednesday afternoon and will meet Glen Williams of Calgary in the provincial final here on a date to be arranged.

This marks the fifth time in the last eight years for Skip Manahan to represent North Alberta. His rink won 13-7 over J. A. McLaren yesterday morning in taking section "B" honors in six straight and including the two triumphs over Matthews has now been unbeaten for 25 consecutive games.

By taking Charlie Cairns' Edmonton quartet 11-9 yesterday while Bob Edwards of Alberta Ave. was losing to Gerry Rice 12-7, Matthews emerged the winner of section "A". The Edwards and Matthews rinks were all-square on Tuesday night, each having four wins and a loss.

Berb Robertson of the Granite also had four wins and one setback in section "B," but Manahan had taken five in a row up to yesterday morning. Robertson stopped Montjoy's rink from Chauvin 12-8 for a fifth victory, but Manahan kept his record intact by beating McLaren.

In the first game with Matthews, the Manahans took a lead of two in the first end and boosted it another one in the second. Matthews had a chance for five in this end, but Manahan counted.

Matthews did draw even with five on the tenth, but his opponent came right back with a similar number and it was all over.

In the second Manahan took the first seven ends, Matthews not hitting the chalk until the eighth when he counted just one.

Following are the end scores of the two finals:

Matthews	001 010 100 50— 8
Manahan	210 201 011 05—13
Manahan	221 111 30—11

Four Technical Kayoes

Two Heavyweight Fights Feature Tourney Opening

By DON KILLIPS

FEATURED by two heavyweight bouts won by Morton Goodstein of U.S. Air Corps and Lyle Staff of No. 4 I.T.S., the two-day U.S. Army boxing tournament commenced at the Arena Wednesday with 22 fighters throwing leather before a crowd of well over 1,000 fans.

Probably the closest fight of the evening was between "Flash" Penola, Air Corps from Long Island and LAC. S. W. Williams of No. 3 "M" Depot. There was little to choose between the two punchers but Penola took a three round decision which was unpopular with many fans.

All bouts were scheduled to go three rounds, but the one between Bob Liska of Lacombe now stationed at No. 4 I.T.S. and George Davis of U.S. Air Corps had to go four, Davis eventually won out, and four others were stopped by referees of the fights and technical knockouts awarded before three rounds were finished.

HUMPTERMER BEATEN

In the heavyweight class, Staff beat Bill Humptermer of Air Corps and Goodstein stopped Harry Keats, also a U.S. Airman. The two winners are scheduled to clash tonight.

John C. Johnson and John Hopkins, both of Air Corps, won in the 175 pound division last night. Hopkins will take on Frank Boxall in the third bout tonight and then the winner will meet Johnson to decide who is boss of that weight among the Americans in this district in a later fight on the same card.

By his victory over Liska in the 160-pound section, George Davis will meet Billie Petersen, who has yet to enter the ring in this tourney and the winner will take on "Flash" Penola in the final of that weight.

GULLANO RECEIVED BYE

Saladore Gullano, who received a bye and did not see action last night will step into the ring against D. E. Tumilson, a Winnipeg boxer now at No. 3 "M" Depot and the winner will fight it out with Tim Catanzaro in the final of the 147 pound class. Tumilson stopped Willie Shaw of Air Corps in the first round last night and Catanzaro, who hails from New York won a decision from Earl Jones, Air Corps.

The victors in the other two divisions, Bill Bone and J. M. Haddock in the 126 pounds and AC2. Rowe in the 135 are also on tonight's nine-bout card along with Burt Renne who meets Rowe.

The tournament is being held in the Arena under the kind permission of Group Captain G. C. Smith of No. 3 "M" Depot. The referees are Capt. W. H. Moulton and Lt. George Regitko. FO. Gerry Widdington, FO. Jake Jamieson and Capt. Frank Wrigglesworth are the judges and Eddie Malloy is the timer.

GOODSTEIN STOPS KEATS

Morton Goodstein of Chicago made quick work of Harry Keats, New Jersey, in the final bout of the evening which was a heavyweight clash. The winner charged out of his corner at the opening gong and landed two heavy blows before Keats was able to get started.

Things slowed up after that for a short time, but it wasn't long before Goodstein, who was a little heavier than his opponent, went after Keats again and just before the first round ended Referee Moulton stopped the bout and awarded a technical knockout to Goodstein.

STAFF BY DECISION

The other heavyweight fight was closer although Lyle Staff of No. 4 I.T.S. held a little edge and took a verdict from William Humptermer of Wisconsin, now in the U.S. Air Corps.

Both slugged hard in the initial round and Humptermer was knocked down after about a minute. The second was slow with not much action, but the fighter gave all they had in the third and Staff managed to land a few more punches and captured the bout.

HOPKINS HALTS AHENAKEW

John Hopkins, Air Corps, stopped Ivan Ahenakew of I.T.S. in the second round of probably the most bitterly fought clash of the night. It was the 10th on the card and Ahenakew handed out some real blows early in the opening round, but when Hopkins got going he came back and slugged his way to an upper hand and just before the bell went ending the initial go, he landed one that sent the Canadian airman to the canvas.

Hopkins continued his fireworks in the second and gave Ahenakew the worst beating of the night before the fight was finally stopped.

DAVIS TAKES 4-ROUNDER

The Liska-Davis match was one of the closest and at the end of the scheduled three rounds the judges voted a draw and an extra go was necessary before Davis won out and advanced into the semi-final of the 160-pound division against Billie Petersen.

Liska held a big edge in the first round and kept his opponent on the go all the time, but was knocked down in the second and Davis, although not as fast, was more effective and got the best of Liska towards the end of that session.

Both fought for keeps in the third and landed hard punches to the face. Davis started Liska's nose bleeding—in the only fight in which blood was drawn—in this round, but the latter fought back and returned some very powerful punches to gain a draw by the end of the third. Davis pounded Liska into the ropes in the fourth and landed a hard right to the latter's face to start his nose bleeding freely and earned enough points to capture the fight.

PENOLA COPS DECISION

The other 160 pound bout, the eighth of the evening, was taken by "Flash" Penola with a decision over LAC. S. W. Williams of No. 3 "M" Depot. The fighters began fast and gave the fans the most action-packed first round of the night and continued the fireworks until the final gong.

Both landed hard blows in the second although none were really effective. Penola handed out some sturdy ones in the third and Williams tired, but managed to come back and get the best of the winner for a short time before Penola landed a beautiful uppercut with only about 10 seconds to go.

BONE TAKES OPENER

William Bone of the U.S. Air Corps from St. Louis took the measure of Jimmy Riddle, N.W.A.-Air Corps in the 126 pound division, holding an edge most of the way.

Bone landed a few good punches in the first round and was faster to outclass his opponent who had a longer reach. Riddle went down on one knee in the second and was pounded into the ropes, but came back strong in the last as both fighters really slugged it out.

HADDOCK GAINS T.K.O.

The second bout, also in the 126 pound class, went to J. M. Haddock of No. 3 "M" Depot when he stopped Billy Matthews of I.T.S., late in the third. The first round was very slow, but Matthews started the real fireworks early in the second when he landed some short body punches. Haddock wasn't long coming back after he received a few blows, and drove the loser into the ropes with some hard punches that were slow but very effective.

Matthews tossed the first glove in the third, but Haddock pounded him into the ropes again and downed him to force the referee to stop the bout.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. — American racing in 1943 raised $5,423,792 for war relief. Since Pearl Harbor, the turf has contributed a total of $8,618,480 to the same cause.. . . . Mrs. Edward Mulrenan's First Fiddle is expected to be favorite for Saturday's $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, following Tuesday's victory in the Lecompte Handicap over Pop's Pick and Rounders.

New York baseball writers wonder how Lippy Leo Durocher will react to Branch Rickey's suggestion that manager Leo resume active play at shortstop this season with the Dodgers. For the past three seasons Durocher has expressed the desire to manage strictly from the bench. He appeared in only six games in 1943, getting four hits in 18 times at bat.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame football coach, will leave soon on a tour of the war fronts, where he will show films of last season's Irish games. He will be accompanied by another head football pilot, whom he will select shortly.

DURNAN YEAR'S ROOKIE

THE Canadian Trotting Association has rejected a proposal to have its horses subjected to saliva tests—feeling that such procedure would reflect on the honor of harness horsemen.

Connie Mack of the Athletics, who recently released four players to the minors, has only 29 men on his squad, one of the smallest in the majors. Detroit has two less. And both are slated to lose more men to the armed services before spring training opens.

A surprise of the National Hockey League season is Bill Durnan, 29-year-old rookie goalie of the Montreal Canadiens. His brilliant net-minding seems certain to win the double distinction of best goalie in the league and rookie of the year. He had once given up on hockey as a career, concentrating on other sports.

MONTGOMERY FAVORED

TELEVISION experts are almost daily visitors to Mike Jacobs' Rumson, N.J., estate, where they check the reception of various events on Mike's ultra-modern television set. Jacobs, convinced that the golden future of boxing is wrapped up in television, already has invested heavily in television stocks.

Corp. Pete Wakins of San Antonio, Tex., national outdoor high jump champion, has entered the national indoor title meet at Madison Square Garden, Feb 26. He will compete against Bill Vessie of Darmouth and Sgt. Joshua Williamson, co-holders of the indoor crown. They will try to break the indoor record of six feet 9-¼ inches.

Bob Montgomery, of Philadelphia, former lightweight champion, is a 3-1 favorite to beat Al "Bummy" Davis, Brooklyn welterweight, at Madison Square Garden Friday night. In seven previous bouts with welterweight opponents, Montgomery won six and had one draw.

Death Dominates Zoo at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Death stalked the Winnipeg zoo during 1943 and the annual report of Frank T. White, Parks superintendent, revealed yesterday that Nero the Lion, Monty the Monkey and three alligators died. The lion died of heaves, the monkey caught a fatal cold and the alligators perished from "unknown causes," the report said. Seven deer, two elk and two pelican were destroyed.

Ken Watson Rink Suffers Setback

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Ken Watson's nifty rink from the Winnipeg Strathcona rink suffered its first defeat in the 1944 Manitoba bonspiel here Wednesday night when he dropped a 14-4 decision to clubmate Leo Johnson, in the semi-finals of the British Consols event. Both Watson and Johnson are former Dominion curling champions.

In another British Consols semi-final match Bung Cartmell's rink from Glenboro, Man., downed Clarence Keeping's Winnipeg Elmwood quartet 10-8. Cartmell is scheduled to meet Johnson in the final of the event tonight.

Six Knockouts Feature Allied Boxing Tourney

ALGIERS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Competition in the Allied boxing tournament roughened Wednesday as six of the 11 scheduled bouts ended in knockouts on the third day of the competition that will determine 16 amateur and professional champions.

British servicemen bounced back from Tuesday's losses with two knockout victories over Americans while a third Briton stopped one of his own countrymen.

Florant Desmorais of Manchester, N.H., chalked up the only pro division knockout when he belted out T. J. Bates of Great Britain in the second round of their lightweight scrap.

In the amateur welterweight James Holmes of Britain flattened Melroy Gamache of Hibbing, Minn., and Tommy McGrath, another British welter, stiffened Timothy Clark of Los Angeles.

Nominations Close For Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Nominations for the seventieth running of the Kentucky Derby closed at midnight Tuesday as track speculators forecast a subscription list exceeding last year, when 110 thoroughbreds were named for the classic.

The last of three-year-old nominees, whose requirements are a $25 nominating fee and formal registration with the Jockey club, will not be made public for three weeks. Owners have until Derby eve, May 5, to post the $500 entry fee.

Platter, rated for many savants as the outstanding two-year-old last year and a leading rival to Pukka Gin and Occupy, will be on the list of nominees.

Some doubt has existed that George D. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman, would name his Plimlico Futurity winner to the Downs classic, because of an aversion to early spring racing for his thoroughbreds, but it was announced at his Erdenheim Farm that both Platter and Lucky Draw will be given the opportunity to run in the $75,000 Deby this year.

The names of Occupy, Belmont Futurity winner, and the crack fillies Durazna, Harriet Sue and Miss Keeneland are reported in the hopper.

The list is almost sure to include also such stars as Olympic Zenith, Gat Bit, Weyanoke, Pensive, Black Badge, Alorter, Jezrahel, Rodney Stone and Director J. E.

A Hawaiian nominee, Kope Kona, a bay colt who never has started, Honolulu being closed to racing since the war, was the first announced nominee and has been stabled at the Downs since January.

C.A.H.A. Head Clarifies Term "Active Service"

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association does not consider a hockey player on divisional strength or awaiting his call, as being on active service, President Frank Sargent of the C.A.H.A. declared Wednesday. He was commenting on the case of Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, former Toronto Maple Leaf forward, who Tuesday was ruled ineligible to play for Vancouver St. Regis of the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

"The moment a professional hockey player goes on active service, he is automatically reinstated as an amateur," Mr. Sargent said.

He said he had "no official information" on the exact status of Schriner, but understood the former National Hockey League star was awaiting call from the navy and "therefore he is not yet on active service."

Mr. Sargent said he had received a wire from Doug Grimston, president of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, asking that he withhold decision on the Schriner case until the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A.

Schriner claimed he was a member of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, Mr. Grimstone's message said.

Mr. Sargent did not indicate what action, if any, would be taken on the request.

COAST OFFICIAL'S OPINION DIFFERS

VANCOUVER, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Dave (Sweeney) Schriner's joining the Vancouver St. Regis hockey team for the Pacific Coast League should never have been questioned, President Doug Grimston of the British Columbia Hockey Association said Wednesday.

"Sweeney, being a member of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, was eligible," said Mr. Grimston.

Mr. Grimston added he had wired President Frank Sargent of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at Port Arthur asking him to lift the suspensions on Schriner and the St. Regis club.

Schriner was branded as ineligible to play with the St. Regis team because he had not fulfilled the residence requirements. Later his military status was questioned.

pound match in a fight without much real action. Both landed hard punches in the first round, but clinches were frequent. Rowe threw a couple of hard blows early in the second and was able to glance off most of Graham's punches although the latter became more effective towards the end of the go.

Rowe tossed a lot of quick short punches in the third, while Graham was hitting from a distance. Both tired near the end and had to be broken apart many times.

QUICK TECHNICAL K.O.

Quickest fight of the evening was in the 147 pound section when D. E. Tumilson, No. 3 "M" Depot scored a technical knockout in the first round over Willie Shaw of Air Corps. The fighters came out of their corners fast and there wasn't a spare second as Tumilson kept Shaw on the go and then pounded him into the ropes to force the referee to award the bout to him. Shaw didn't go down and wasn't hurt, however, and was surprized when the referee stepped in to stop the battle.

CATANZARO WINS

The opening round of the Catanzaro-Jones match was slow and the second started out the same way, but Tim Catanzaro of New York waited his chance and then nailed Earl Jones against the ropes and handed out a few rights to the face. There was little action in the third until Catanzaro went after Jones hard and gained a three-round verdict.

FRICHETT OUT-POINTED

In the other 175 pound go, John Johnson of Air Corps took a decision from Bill Frichett, also of the U.S. Air Force in a slow bout. Johnson showed more class and waited for Frichett to come to him and was very effective with his left. He managed to tire Frichett in the third to earn the three-round decision.

Red Deer Cagers Defeat Camrose To Lead League

By LT. BILL WALLACE
Public Relations Correspondent, A20 C.A.S.C. T.C. (CA)

RED DEER, Feb. 17.—The A20 hoop squad called in on their Camrose contemporaries Saturday and stayed long enough to take a game in the tri-centre loop by a 26-18 count, and assume the League leadership. The encounter was speedy and clean, and exceptionally well handled by Lt. Jack Brown of Camrose and Sgt. Bud Jones of Red Deer, both skilled whistle handlers.

Pte. Phil Peterson, the dynamic colored boy, again led the scoring for Camrose, but was held to a scant six points by the persistent checking of Pte. Ted Lydiard and Sgt. Chuck Stevens, who effectively slowed down the Camrose comet. Sgt. Jack Smith and Pte. Fred Bishop led the A20 attack, sharing honors in scoring.

The feminine cagers from No. 45 Coy. C.W.A.C. attached to A20 also visited Camrose, Saturday, and staged a challenge game with the Camrose detachment of their own Company, which they won by a comfortable margin of 18-3.

"SUGAR JIM" POPULAR

There isn't much visible jubilation at A20 over Jim Henry's winning the Gordon Efficiency Medal, largely because it was taken for granted by his host of fans that "Sugar Jim" was the logical choice. Pte. Henry is just about No. 1 man at this Training Centre, and his popularity is due not only to his scintillating shows on the ice, but to his unassuming friendly personality when he has shed his Flying Wheel sweater for battledress drab.

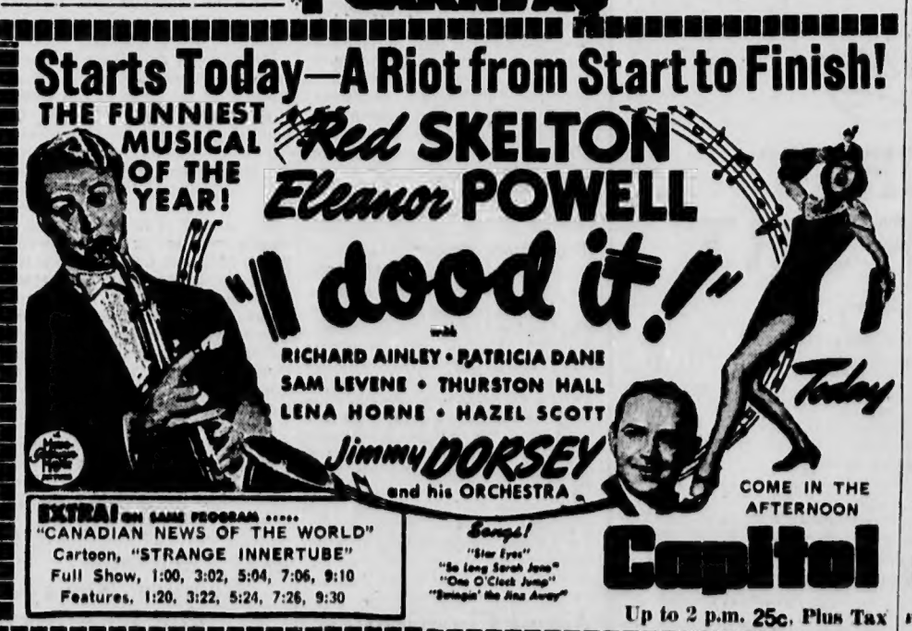

In fact, Pte. Henry in khaki is so unlike the "Sugar Jim" between the sticks, that one sports announcer who has been vividly describing his sensational goal tending for months, failed utterly to recognize the Wheelers net minder on seeing him last week for the first time "off duty."

PENHOLD BOYS LEAD

A20 has slipped back several notches in the games tournament now being staged with the R.A.F. boys from Penhold. After a decisive victory in the hockey event, Red Deer sent delegations of tennis and table tennis players to Penhold for the second round.

The Flyers thoroughly trimmed the soldiers in all table tennis fixtures, and made an auspicious start on the indoor tennis courts by taking two singles matches from A20. Red Deer made a last minute recovery, however, and took the doubles set 6-4.

Lieut. Emile Gamache of Falher, and Capt. Sam McRea of Vancouver, were the A20 tennis representatives.

Last Two Links In Oil Pipeline Are Connected

and gasoline was absolutely necessary for the air defence of Canada and Alaska. It was definitely known that there were oil resources at Norman Wells and it was decided to utilize this source.

Brig.-Gen. Ludson D. Worsham of Evansville, Indiana, commanding general of the Northwest Service Command and Northwest Division Engineer, was directly in charge of the entire Canol project under the overall command of Brig.-Gen. James A. O'Connor, former commanding general of the Northwest Service Command. Lt.-Col. Robert W. Lockridge was district engineer in charge of operations at the Norman Wells and of the pipe line while Col. James V. Johnston was the district engineer of the Whitehorse end.

The meeting of the two tractor crews, which have been laying the pipe line at temperatures of 50 degrees below zero and living in "cabooses," small wooden huts built on runners that can be moved daily in a tractor train, was not particularly spectacular and was not celebrated with any great fanfare.

SOURCE OF PRIDE

But it is a source of great pride to every man who assisted in the project in any way, General Worsham said today in issuing a general commendation and in extending his thanks and congratulations to all those who had undergone hardships to assist in the completion of the project.

"The pipe line project is completed as of today and we hope soon to make the first test runs at Whitehorse," the general said.

Through this pipe line oil will be pumped from Norman Wells to the refinery at Whitehorse, where operations for the refining of the oil are expected to be started in April.

The Canol project consists of (1) the drilling of wells at Norman Wells, (2) the construction road from Norman Wells to Whitehorse, (3) the pipe line which parallels the construction road, (4) pump stations and storage tanks, (5) a refinery which was dismantled in Texas and transported and enlarged at Whitehorse, and (6) a network of pipe lines to other points in Canada and Alaska.

The project, all parts of which will be completed this spring, met with tremendous setbacks and what in many cases appeared to be insurmountable obstacles which nature placed in the way of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, and the Bechtel-Price-Callahan companies, overall contractors in charge of most of the Canol development.

PIONEER TRANSPORTATION

The record of Canol development is a history of pioneer transportation.

When the tote road was completed by the first of this year, it was obvious that the key to the entire project had been found and welding operations leaped far ahead of previous performances. The laying and welding of the pipe line were comparatively simple and easy tasks.

Working and living conditions on the completing of the Canol project were incredibly difficult.

Temperatures ranged from 80 degrees above zero to 40 degrees below zero. Men and machines fought swamps, unpredictable changes in river beds, ice that buckled and changed its location overnight, muskeg into which great caterpillar machines would founder where men and lighter machines had passed without breaking through the crust of debris that had built a mat over some areas of the muskeg.

The tote road to Whitehorse from Norman Wells actually crossed territory for hundreds of miles where previously no accurate charts existed and where in many cases no white men had ever set foot before.

First it was necessary to make sure that supplies could be got into the oil well area, a task that called on all the ingenuity and physical and moral strength that the engineers, soldiers and civilian contractors' employees could muster.

WATERWAYS USED

The water route from Waterways at the end of steel running toward the Mackenzie River Valley was used to carry in as many supplies and as much road building equipment as possible during the four and one-half month navigation season.

In the winter of 1942-43 a supply depot was set up at Peace River, another at railhead of the Northern Alberta Railways, and supplies and equipment, men and machines, were loaded aboard tractor trains consisting of a heavy-duty tractor hauling from five to ten heavy sleds. These trains made a trek of 1,000 miles through the dead of winter overland where there were no signs of previous routes.

Hundreds of tons of freight moved by this method from Peace River to Norman Wells with a bulldozer in front using its heavy blade to blaze the trail with the tractor train directly behind it.

Heavy 6-wheel trucks eventually were used for part of this route when nature failed to lay its usual heavy blanket of snow over some sections where the rocky soil ground the runners off the sleds within a few miles.

Transportation from Norman Wells westward into the unexplored Mackenzie mountain range was at one time a precarious adventure and more than one crew was forced to turn back by the cruel winter of 1942-43.

Transportation during the four and a half months of open water in this region, less than a hundred miles south of the Arctic Circle, also is a precarious undertaking.

Great Slave Lake, about the size and shape of Lake Erie, is a great body of water and strange "willy-waws" similar to the dreaded tempests of the Aleutian chain spring out of the Artic and twist along the Mackenzie river to whip Great Slave lake into a frothing sea.

On this winter route is a 16-mile portage from Fitzgerald to Fort Smith over which all equipment needed at Norman Wells had to be pulled by the ubiquitous tractor and launched again.

The Alaska Highway was also another essential to the completion of the Canol project since materials and equipment were carried in over the Alaska Highway to the beginning of the road from Whitehorse to Norman Wells and a drive was started from this end toward Sheldon Lake at the same time the tote road was started from Norman wells toward Sheldon Lake from the other side of the mountain range.

However, on the western slope of the Mackenzie range there is the great Yukon River valley which compared to the Mackenzie River side of the mountain range is a gentle sloping country-side, although more rugged than most terrain seen by the average man in his lifetime.

FEAT ACCOMPLISHED

However, this challenging engineering feat has been accomplished and men of the north will tell long tales of the hardships on long winter nights for years to come.

The Alaska Highway, the Canol project and the air fields are integral parts of one unit, each complementing one another, for the defence of the North American continent and a possible offensive route against Japan.

Nine Bills Get Second Reading, Six Introduced

Second reading was given in the legislature Wednesday afternoon to nine bills, the first to be advanced through that process in the new session. Six new bills were introduced, bringing the total of this session to 29 to date.

An act to amend the Building Associations' Act was first to be givenu second reading. It was brought into the house by Premier Ernest Manning, minister of trade and industry. The bill will give to the supervisor of co-operative activities, full authority to carry out the functions of a board which the act calls for.

MEMBERS NAMED

J. C. Mahaffy, K.C., Independent, Calgary, asked who made up the board referred to in the act and was told the members were W. S. Gray, K.C., of the department of the attorney-general; W. D. Stacey, superintendent of buildings, department of public works; and W. D. King, deputy minister of trade and industry.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Mahaffy, Mr. Manning said one co-operative building association has been in operation for more than a year, and a second is in the process of being organized, if it is not already completely organized.

The original association, the premier said, has advanced loans for the building of 38 homes, and government assistance to it has amounted to $60,000, principally by loans from the insurance office.

Mr. Mahaffy declared there should be a board or should not be a board, under the act. If the board was not to function, it should be wiped out. The amendment would make for a responsible board, and a responsible supervisor, giving a conflict of responsibility which is not good.

"The minister should make up his mind whether he wants a board or a supervisor," said Mr. Mahaffy.

BOTH ARE WANTED

"We want both," said the premier.

After this brief discussion, the bill received second reading.

Mr. Mahaffy opened discussion on a second bill up for second reading, an act to amend the Dairymen's Act. The Calgary member took exception to the phrase, "This act shall come into force on the day upon which it is assented to," which is appended to many government bills.

He said that the Alberta Interpretation Act provides that acts are to come into force on July 1, following the session at which they were introduced, unless it was otherwise provided.

A bill under the present system becomes law when it is assented to by the lieutenant-governor, Mr. Mahaffy continued, although it was sometimes months later before the new laws were available in printed form to the public.

In cases of emergency, an act should become law as soon as assent is given, the M.L.A. continued, but in the case of average legislation, it was suggested it should not come into effect until July 1, so its provisions could become better known to those whom it would affect.

MAYNARD ANSWERS

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., attorney-general, answered Mr. Mahaffy, and said there is a mailing list containing some 400 names, mainly of lawyers, who receive printed copies of bills as soon as they are distributed in the Legislature. In this way, interested parties receive opportunity to inspect new legislation, before it is through third reading stage in the House.

Mr. Maynard also said provision has been made in certain bills in the past, that they should not come into force until proclaimed. This feature has been the subject of criticism, he pointed out.

There was no justification for holding up an ordinary bill until July 1, said Mr. Maynard, just before the bill received its second reading.

NEW LEGISLATION

New legislation introduced into the House included an Act Respecting Persons Dealing in, or with Respect to Fish, by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines; an Act to amend the Co-Operative Associations Act, by Premier Manning; an Act to amend the Operation of School (War) Act, and an Act to Amend the School Attendance Act, by Hon. Solon E. Low, minister of education; and two Acts from Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health, one to amend the Vital Statistics Act, and a second providing for the establishment of a department of public welfare, and prescribing its powers and duties.

Await Clarification Argentine Move

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Official circles awaited clarification today of Argentina's confused poiitical situation before giving closer consideration to the advisability of withdrawing recognition from the Buenos Aires government.

Most officials here were frankly disturbed by reports that the young army officers who precipitated the latest crisis, forcing the resignation of several cabinet members, had been motivated by a fear that their country was going to declare war on the Axis.

Attaches of the Argentine embassy here appeared as much confused as state department officials by the sudden turn in events.

Fish Dealers Placed Under Strict Control

To license all fish dealers, wholesalers and persons operating fishing stations, a new act was brought down in the legislature Wednesday afternoon by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines.

The minister explained after the house rose that purpose of the new regulations is to institute a rigid inspection system to prevent fish infestation from becoming a serious threat to the export and local fish trade. Similar legislation has been in effect in Manitoba since 1942, and it is proposed that all three of the prairie provinces have regulations along the same lines.

TO ISSUE LICENSES

According to the new act, the government is to issue licenses for fish dealers, fishing station operators, fish processors, wholesalers, exporters, retailers, and others engaged in the handling of fish. The licenses are to show for which class of business they are issued, and may cover more than one class of operation.

The act requires records to be kept of all transactions relating to the sale and export of fish, showing the date of the transactions; the name, address and license number of the dealer to whom fish are delivered, and the species and quality of fish sold or handled.

Every carrier, whether a common carrier or not, and including the owner or driver of a motor vehicle, is required under the new Act to obtain from a shipper or seller of fish a signed statement setting out the species of fish, and quantity, to be included in a shipment; and the name, address and license number of the shipper.

PENALTIES PROVIDED

Persons who are convicted of infractions of the regulation are to be subject to fines of not more than $200 on first offence, or imprisonment for not more than a month. For a second offence, the maximum fine is to be $500, or not more than three months' imprisonment. Corporations convicted of infractions are subject to a fine not in excess of $1,000.

Departmental officers are to have the power to stop and search without a search warrant, any vehicle, aircraft, vessel, or railway car, where reasonable evidence exists that such conveyances contain fish to be sold, stored, bought or processed contrary to provisions of the Act.

Fish found in the course of such a search are subject to confiscation. Licenses of a person convicted of an offence against the Act are to be deemed cancelled, but they may be reinstated on the authority of the minister of lands and mines.

$2,000,000 Left Soldier By Woman

OAKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP)—A United States Army private now serving overseas will receive $2,000,000 from the estate of Mrs. Mary Martin, who died recently in Oakville after making a fortune in northern Ontario mines.

The private, 26-year-old Ben R. Violette, is a nephew of Mrs. Martin and is a military policeman in London where U.S. Army headquarters announced today he would receive the $2,000,000. Mrs. Martin's will specified that he receive the money when he is 30.

Mrs. Martin first went to northern Ontario in 1907 as a stenographer in the days of the Cobalt silver rush. There she laid the foundation for her fortune, making $50,000 by making out legal forms for prospectors, adding to it later in mining speculation and investment.

She is said to have held control at one time of the Violette claim in the Kirkland Lake area. It was named after her grandfather and later became part of the Tough Oakes Mine. Mrs. Martin was associated with the late Sir Harry Oakes in some of his mining ventures and held a considerable interest in the Lake Shore mine at Kirkland Lake.

Born in Indiana, Mrs. Martin came to Canada in 1906. She was the first woman ever elected to the executive of the Ontario Prospectors' Association, in which she was active for many years.

Slav Partisans Repulse Nazis But Lose Town

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Yugoslav patriots declared yesterday they had forced back the Germans in the direction of Knin in Dalmatia, but acknowledged the loss of Bugojno, an important town near the border of Bosnia.

A broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio said the partisans of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) had captured the village of Grahovo in the fighting in Central Dalmatia, and that "the Germans were compelled to retreat in the direction of Knin. Besides the Germans killed in battle, many were found frozen."

Bill Is Introduced to Set Up Public Welfare Department

Details of Legislation Are Outlined in House As First Reading Given

To establish a provincial department of public welfare, a bill was introduced into the Legislature Wednesday afternoon by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health. The bill, outlining powers and duties of the new department, was given first reading.

According to the new act, a member of the provincial executive council is to be appointed as minister of public welfare, by the lieutenant-governor in council. Provision is made for the appointment of a deputy minister and other officers, as well as clerks and stenographers. Duties and salaries of such departmental employees are to be set by the governor-in-council, subject to provisions of the Public Service Efficiency act.

Under terms of the new bill, the public welfare department may:

1—Institute inquiry into and collect information and statistics relating to all matters of public welfare;

2—Disseminate information in such manner and form as may be found best adapted to promote public welfare;

3—Secure the observance and execution of the provisions of all acts and regulations dealing with matters of public welfare;

4—Take or direct such matters as may seem suitable for the promotion of public welfare;

INVESTIGATE ACTIVITIES

5—Investigate, inspect and report upon all activities, agencies, organizations, associations and institutions having for their object the social welfare of men, women and children in the province which are not under the control of any other department of the public service of the province;

Recommend to the lieutenant-governor-in-council regulations respecting welfare institutions, organizations of agencies and governing the soliciting of alms, food, clothing, moneys and contributions of any kind for charitable or benevolent purposes in the province.

The governor-in-council is empowered under the Act to declare, on the minister of public welfare's recommendation, that any charitable institution or class of institution is to be subject to the control of the minister. Regulations may also be made relating to the affairs of such institutions, particularly in respect to the procuring of funds from the public and as to their application.

Formation of the new department was forecast in the Speech from the Throne read when the Legislature opened last Thursday. As yet, the government has not indicated who is to head the department.

Until the present time, public welfare matters have been administered by the Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, whose full portfolio has been minister of health and public welfare.

City Employees Receive Offer Wage Increase

Inclusion of the cost-of-living bonus in the basic salary of civic employees, and a two per cent increase of salary for all civic employees were the main terms offered by the city commissioners to the Federation of Civic Employees' request for wage increases and improved working conditions for the year 1944. Commissioner John Hodgson stated that the commissioners' offer to the employees would cost approximately $76,000.

The federation, through its executive, asked for a $20 monthly increase for all civic employees, the inclusion of the cost of living bonus in the basic wage rate, and also the appointment of a board of referees to handle all labor disputes.

Negotiations are now being carried out also at Calgary, and civic employees there have requested a $25 a month increase over the basic wage for employees paid on a monthly basis, and 15 cents an hour increase for hourly men; three weeks holiday with pay, and a closed shop.

The city commissioners in the southern city have turned down the closed shop request, and after three meetings with employees have offered all employees $18.50 a month increase to be applied in the form of a bonus.

In the Edmonton proposal the cost of living bonus to single employees without dependents will be automatically increased to the $2 weekly rate now paid married employees and single employees with depenedents. Formerly this classification received $1 weekly.

A meeting of the Civic Service Union has been called for Friday afternoon, Feb. 18, to consider the commissioners' proposals. This meeting will be held at the civic block.

House Is Told Money Reform Required Now

This year, with the Bank Act coming up for revision, is the time to take away from private corporations the control of currency and credit, and put it into the hands of the Bank of Canada and the people's representatives, A. E. Fee, Social Credit M.L.A., for Sedgewick, said in the Legislature Wednesday, when he took part in the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The Sedgewick M.L.A. said he felt that with that control in the Bank of Canada's hands, it would be possible to effect the big post-war reconstruction plans that are being made. He suggested that the word "construction" would be more apt than the word "reconstruction."

RIGHT TO PROTEST

It was only correct that there should be the right to protest where a policy which is being carried out is not in the best interests of Canada, said the member, in reference to remarks made early this week by James Walker, Independent M.L.A. for Warner riding, and Independent House Leader, who objected to the word "practicable" where it was used in the Speech from the Throne.

(The Throne Speech stated, "My government will continue to give full co-operation and assistance to the federal government, in all practicable measures designed to hasten a victorious peace.")

With reference to a remark made by J. J. Bowlen, Liberal M.L.A. for Calgary, that he was unable to understand the economic theories of the Social Credit party, Mr. Fee told the House that both G. G. McGeer, K.C., M.P., of Vancouver, and the council of Vancouver Board of Trade did. He said he wondered why so little was being heard from these people.

He also referred to the promises Premier W. L. Mackenzie King had made in reference to Social Credit plans, during the Dominion general election of 1935.

TRIBUTE IS PAID

Paying tribute to the late Premier William Aberhart, Mr. Fee said one of his great contributions was the introduction of Premier Ernest Manning, his successor and the present premier.

3 Former Soldiers Learn Reporting

Three young men, recently discharged from military service, commenced a period of training for court reporting, Thursday morning, in the court of Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C.

The three are: Douglas Willis, 23 years old, of 10039 105 street, who formerly lived at Stavely, where he was educated; Wayne Berry, 20, of 11332 93 street, who received his education in this city; Bill Giesbrecht, 23, of 10006 104 street, and formerly of Gretna, Man.

The training, it was stated, is being conducted under a Dominion government plan, in an effort to rehabilitate the men into a civilian occupation.

The young men attended school before entering the services.

Cabins Entered

Ten cabins situated on the north side of the river near the mouth of White Mud Creek were broken into recently, according to city police. Considerable damage had been done to fixtures in the buildings, and some articles had been stolen, among which was a hammer, tarpaulin, and screw driver. One window, a lamp, and several dishes had been broken also, it is reported.

Chamber Urges More Cars For Alberta Grain

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday sent a letter to Hon. James A. MacKinnon, M.P., minister of trade and commerce, urging that more freight cars be made available to the province of Alberta for the movement of grain, and that the embargo on coarse grain shipments to the lakehead be removed, or that some other outlet be found for coarse grains.

This action was taken following approval by the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce council at the Corona hotel.

Pointing out that Northern Alberta farmers are suffering at the present time from a combination of circumstances which seriously restrict the sale of wheat and coarse grains, the chamber said that the most urgent need at present is the necessity for the movement of coarse grains.

"The embargo on the shipment of course grains to the lakehead, and the serious lack of cars available to move authorized shipments of wheat, have caused congestion in local elevators so that in effect there is also an embargo on the delivery of grain to the elevators," the Chamber wrote.

The letter pointed out that Northern Alberta farmers increased the production of coarse grains at the request of the Dominion government, and that the present congestion is a result of an unequitable distribution of railway cars for transporting wheat from the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

According to the records of the Board of Grain Commissioners covering the movement of grain from the three prairie provinces from Dec. 3, 1943, to Feb. 8, 1944, the letter continued, the figures indicate that "Alberta is not getting its proper quota of cars."

The letter also pointed out that "much of the coarse grain in this district will not merit top grades . . . and if as might be indicated by the failure to find a place for these coarse grains, buyers become more discriminating and will only take high grade oats," the result may be a decrease in the value of the lower grades and "the farmers will suffer as a result."

INABILITY TO SELL

The letter stressed the inability of farmers to sell their products with resulting financial distress and appealed for prompt consideration of this matter.

"We will appreciate your prompt consideration of this matter and hope that relief will be secured as expeditiously as possible," the letter, signed by Reg. T. Rose, Executive Secretary, concluded.

THE QUESTION

A community program designed to meet the needs of young boys and girls in every community would help to alleviate the problem of the alarming growth of juvenile deliquency, according to James M. Samson, Y.M.C.A. assistant National Boys' Work secretary. Do you agree?

THE ANSWERS

BETTY BARREY, school teacher: I don't think just any kind of program would do. It would have to be made attractive to the children because you can't force children to take an interest in things. But a well organized and supervised program would indubitably be a good thing.

MRS. A. J. WOOD, mother-of-two: I think it would certainly help a lot. All children seem to want to run off and play with their "gang" and a mother can't help but worry when she doesn't know what they are up to.

WILLIAM McCALLUM, clerk: I think that boys especially take to an organized program of sports. They certainly get enthusiastic about their hockey teams and ball teams and if these were organized by the communities and properly supervised it would keep a lot of them out of mischief.

Members of the board of trustees for Alberta under the Canteen Funds Act have been appointed for another three-year period, it is announced in the current issue of the Alberta Gazette. The re-appointments, made by order-in-council, are dated from July 3, 1943. Lt.-Col. Louis Scott, D.C.M., of Edmonton, is board chairman. Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., Edmonton area commandant, and Dr. G. H. Wade, Hanna, are the other two members of the board.

A quantity of cigarettes was taken from his bakery, James Stinson, 10325 97 street, told police early Thursday. The smokes were taken out of a showcase. Entry was made by the door, which had been opened by means of strips of celluloid. According to police, Mrs. Stinson, wife of the proprietor, heard a noise in the bakery about 6 a.m. Mr. Stinson said the premises had been entered after midnight.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, who has been in Ottawa conferring with the Dominion government in company with other provincial public works ministers, is expected to return to Edmonton next Monday. It was announced recently that the ministers were to meet the senior government, to talk over the year's road-building plans, and discuss possible Dominion aid for highway building. Mr. Fallow was also to discuss at Ottawa the province's offer to make Government House at Edmonton available for use as a returned soldiers' convalescent home.

Another new member has been welcomed to the Canadian Women's Army Corps pipe band. She is Private Madeline Elizabeth Savage, of Edmonton, former corporal instructor at No. 2 C.W.A.C. Basic Training Centre, Vermilion. Private Savage enlisted in the C.W.A.C. on Jan. 26, 1943, in Edmonton, and following her basic training was kept on at the training centre as a platoon instructor. She took a keen interest in the Khaki Korn Kernels, the training centre orchestra, in which she played the drums, and will be a drummer in the famous pipe band. Her mother, Mrs. Bridget Anne May, resides at 11938 85 street.

Lt. Lolita N. Wilson, formerly employed in the office of the C.W.A.C. Staff Officer, M.D. 13, has been transferred to the army examiner's department, it was announced today by military authorities. Lt. Wilson's new duties as a C.W.A.C. army examiner will be to make a survey of all C.W.A.C. companies in Military District No. 13 and the Pacific Command, to interview girls who are already holding positions in the army, and to recommend any changes in position which might be more beneficial to their type of work. If it is found that a job is not suitable, it will be changed to one in which the girls will serve best. Before enlisting in the C.W.A.C., Feb. 8, 1942, Lt. Wilson was secretary to the city clerk in Lethbridge, Alta. She was active in the Canadian Auxiliary Territorial Service and held the rank of lieutenant in that volunteer corps.

The public meeting to discuss the possibility of a housing scheme for Edmonton will be held at the I.O.O.F. Hall, 103 street, on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m., it was announced Thursday by Alfred Russell, city clerk. The meeting is being held as a result of a petition, signed by more than 100 electors, requesting the mayor to call a public meeting to discuss civic matters. The petition is filed under Section 40 of the city's charter which makes it mandatory that a meeting be called on the petition of 30 or more electors. The petition was filed by W. R. Ball, Edmonton oldtimer.

Free Education Is Essential For This Province

Education should be absolutely free in Alberta, J. Percy Page, Independent M.L.A. for Edmonton, declared in the Legislature Thursday afternoon, speaking in the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Financial inability to pay should not be a deterrent to those boys and girls who have the capacity, industry and desire for educational advancement, he said.

Mr. Page, who is president of the Independent Citizens' Association, and principal of a commercial High School in this city, made a strong plea for more optional subjects on Alberta schools' curriculum.

"We believe that there is far too much dissimilarity among the courses of study in the four western provinces. When students transfer from one province to another, there is a serious waste of time. The situation could be remedied easily by offering a greater number of optional subjects," he said.

When the present course of study was introduced, it was promised that it would be so flexible that any child might exercise the widest choice in the selection of his subjects, in order to develop his capacities along the lines where his aptitudes might lie. Now, the department of education is "backtracking", and adding materially to the list of compulsory subjects, said Mr. Page.

The high rate of elimination from the high schools throughout the province is a matter of grave concern, and may well suggest that our courses are not sufficiently practical to maintain the students' interest, he continued.

The Legislature was told that as a means of establishing a strong, virile agriculture in Alberta, every effort should be made to give a practical approach to rural problems. Agriculture must be elevated to a position equal to that of the professions, and its dignity and value stressed in the educational system.

Mr. Page continued: "We believe that a co-operative system of education should be established in our high schools, whereby certain credits would be allowed for part-time experience in industry, offices, stores, and on the farms."

He spoke of the Independent party's platform, as adopted at the recent Calgary convention, saying it was definitely promised by the group, that if elected, a much greater share of the cost of education would be assumed. In the cities of Edmonton and Calgary, Mr. Page said that only seven cents out of each dollar necessary for the upkeep of the schools is paid by the provincial government.

The government arranges the courses of study, and authorizes the text books, while the school boards act as little more than finance committees to keep the schools in operation, he stated.

A RECOMMENDATION

Mr. Page referred to a recent recommendation of the American Council on Education, in which it was said, "The curriculum should make definite provision for further training connected with the adjustment of youth to the employment opportunities that are available." He said that more than once he has urged exactly the same thing, only to be told, "The department is not particularly interested in vocational training."

Milder Weather Is Forecast Here

Snow which began Wednesday evening measured another three-tenths of an inch when it ceased early this morning. The expected drop in temperatures however did not materialize and the maximum temperature Wednesday was 21 degrees, and the overnight low 4 degrees above zero. The official reading at 8:30 a.m. Thursday was 19 degrees, and warmer weather is indicated by the forecast which is "partly cloudy and milder."

Alberta School Holiday Period July 16–Sept. 30

School holidays in Alberta this summer will run from July 16 to Sept. 30, according to terms of a bill brought into the legislature Wednesday afternoon by Hon. Solon E. Low, minister of education. The bill amends the Operation of Schools (War) Act, introduced at the last session of the house, which set the summer holiday period from Aug. 1 to Oct. 9 for this year.

Because of week-end holidays, effect of the new legislation on the school vacation this year will mean schools will close on Friday, July 14, and will not re-open until Monday, Oct. 2, providing an 11-week holiday period.

MANY REQUESTS

Mr. Low announced the change in the holiday period some time ago, after numerous requests had been made by organizations and persons interested. The holiday period was changed to help relieve the critical labor situation that existed on farms last summer, but has been the subject of much criticism since.

The holiday period in 1943 ran from the end of June to Oct. 12, the longest period ever known. Legislation which changed the summer holiday period last year also cut the Easter vacation period down to one day, Easter Monday. This change will still stand, "for the duration."

A second school bill, to amend the School Attendance Act, was also introduced Wednesday by Mr. Low. It requires that when a pupil reaches the age of 15 years during the June term, he must continue attending school until the end of that term. The present Act requires only the attendance of a pupil until he is 15 years of age.

National parks of the United States yielded 6,473,855 pounds of scrap metal in 1942, enough to fill more than 75 freight cars.

New Quarters To Be Built

Demonstrated at City Armory

Latest example of army-air force co-operation and co-ordination in Edmonton was revealed here Thursday with an announcement that the army will temporarily house and feed a considerable number of airwomen at the Prince of Wales Armory.

The airwomen, who are expected to arrive in the city shortly, will be posted to R.C.A.F. training establishments in Edmonton, where they will relieve men who are being posted to other duties.

While work on construction of quarters for them is being carried out, the women will be quartered at a special hut at the Prince of Wales Armory and will also draw rations from the army messing kitchen here.

It is believed that the airwomen will be posted to duty at No. 2 A.O.S. for the most part.

Area Commandant Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., said Thursday that all arrangements for quartering and rationing of the airwomen have been completed.

The R.C.A.F. contingent will be under its own supervisory officers and the hut in which they will make their temporary home is separate from the C.W.A.C. barracks, it was stated.

For some time now the army and air force have been conducting recruiting operations jointly. Army and air force recruiting personnel have intermingled at city recruiting centres. The navy is also in on the co-operation.

Following transfer of the special employment company from the Prince of Wales armory to the district depot at Calgary last week, C.W.A.C. personnel here are attached for messing to the vocational army training centre.

McCoy Health Service

The person wishing to gain in strength must remember that his food must be selceted to supply him with all the material needed for muscle building. A reasonable amount of proteins such as meat, fish eggs, chicken, and so on, must be used each day along with plenty of cooked and raw vegetables. The protein is the only material out of which your body may build new muscle tissue, while the vegetables are of value for their vitamins, minerals, and bulk.

There is no particular kind of food which contains an inherent quality for supplying you with strength. Sharches, sugars, and fats and oils wil yield energy when they are burned in the body, but when used to excess they will crowd out of the diet some of the other elements which are vitally essential to the person wishing to gain strength.

While you are following a strength-gaining schedule, I suggest that if you use starches at all, you try to secure those which are the least refined. For example, in using wheat, use the whole wheat products. The whole wheat will serve as a much better carrier of vitamin B-1 than the refined white flour. This particular vitamin is need for good digestion and you will soon find that anything which helps the digestion will help you to gain strength.

Intestinal cleanliness is important in relation to strength-building. Before your body can manifest the natural abundance of strength which the Creator intended, it must be clean in every part. You can not allow yourself to remain constipated and expect to manifest plenty of energy. Until you get the bowels to moving regularly each day by the use of a correct diet and by exercising, use the enema if you have to.

While trying to grow stronger, observe yourself and see if you have fallen into the injurious habit of expecting weakness. If you expect to remain weak, you will receive exactly what you expect. In this attitude of mind you are not likely to attract the strength for which you are sincerely striving.

You must abandon mental habits of worry, criticism, intolerance, mis-trust of yourself, and feelings of inferiority, and in place of them you must establish habits of thinking construtcively and cheerfully. Learn to give yourself good suggestions by saying, "I feel stronger today." Take that word "Strength" and repeat it over and over. Surely, when you are making the physical effort to bring about increased strength you have every right in the world to expect strength to look for it, and to rejoice in it when it comes. When you tell yourself over and over that you are weak, you will probably remain weak; while if you tell yourself that you are growing stronger, you will have a much better chance of manifesting strength eventually.

To gain strength, you can not wait for it to happen to you, but must use the aggressive and positive methods which are necessary for its acquisition. If you wish strength abundantly, you must eat for strength, breathe for strength, exercise for strength, and think for strength. Do this, and do it long enough, and strength will be yours.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

This cabbage recipe is from Igor Gorin, noted Russian American baritone who likes good food.

RED CABBAGE, SWEET AND SOUR
(Serves 6)

One medium head cabbage, 2 tablespoons bacon drippings, 1 heaping tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons vinegar, ½ cup seedless raisins, 1 apple, skin on and sliced.

Cut the cabbage fine and cook until tender, then melt in a pan the bacon drippings, flour, sugar and vinegar. Strain the cabbage and add to above mixture the raisins and sliced apple. Simmer for a few additional minutes.

From the cook book, brand-new and interesting, comes this savory dish.

RED CABBAGE
(Serves 8)

Two medium red cabbages, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 medium onion, 4 tablespoons bacon drippings or cooking oil, 1 bay leaf, 3 cloves, 2 peppercorns, 2 tart apples, sliced fine, 1 tablespoon butter or cooking fat, 1 teaspoon flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, juice of ½ lemon.

Shred cabbage and soak in water to which vinegar has been added. Chop onion fine, brown in drippings. Add cabbage, well drained, bay leaf, cloves, peppercorns and apples, sliced fine. Cook slowly until tender, stirring frequently, since red cabbage burns easily. When done, melt butter in saucepan, add flour, cabbage and its juices. Sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice, simmer a minute or two, and serve at once.

Casserole of meat and onions is rolled in tender cabbage leaves.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Tomato and lemon juice, scrambled eggs, oatmeal muffins, honey spread, coffee, milk for children.

Lunch: Creamed codfish on toast, ray carrot sticks, enriched whole wheat rolls, butter, stewed winter pears, tea, milk for children.

Dinner: Chopped meat, gravy and onions casseroled in cabbage leaves, baked sweet potatoes, spiced cranberries, enriched bread, butter, Dutch apple cake, coffee, milk for children.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON—Had a visit from a Red Cross worker, back from one of our fronts yesterday afternoon. I was impressed by her feeling that we, at home, were not giving the proper respect to the overseas boys when they return, permanently or on furlough. I imagine that any boy coming back to his home is made much of and listened to. But in many places, particularly ports of debarkation, we are so crowded and so busy that we do not give as much thought as we should to what it would mean to these boys if every one of us gave them the respect and attention due them.

How many of us know our overseas ribbons, and can tell by looking at them where our boys have served? That would be a good thing to know. If we never missed a chance to make a man feel at home in our city or town even though it was far from his home, it would help. We could make quite a change in the first few days which he spends back in the United States and which he has looked forward to for weary months, if we were always ready to render him any service in our power.

I want to give you excerpts from two letters which have just come to me and which will show what people from home mean to men who are overseas, and how rewarding it is to feel that one has given even a short period of pleasure to these men. The first is from of young Red Cross worker whom I have known for a long time. "I wish you could have seen our men this afternoon—the lounge was packed—and you could have heard a pin drop. They do so appreciate anything that is good. If only more of our top artists would come over from America. I don't think they can possibly realize what it means to the men so far away from home. If they did, they would be proud to serve and eager to come."

The next is from an artist, a well known British musician: "Having just given a concert here to the American soldiers (one of several I have been giving them in different clubs) I felt that you and the President might like to know about it, and how happy I have been to give them an hour of music to stimulate and soothe them so far away from home."

Of course our artists are anxious to go, and many of them do go, but there is the question of transportation which is always difficult.

Our servicemen want attention when they are far away from home. How much more they must want it the day they get home and the days thereafter if they happen to be held in a strange place by hospitalization. It seems to be that a serviceman from overseas should go to the head of any line, be the first served in a restaurant, get the best seat everywhere. He is giving so much for his home and we can give him so little in return.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Wealth in Knowledge That One Does His Best

Every Man Who Completed An Honest Day's Work With Tools God Gave Him, Who Does Not Shirk Duty, Is Success

A man writes me: "When we see people who are seemingly without ambition, I often wonder if it is not because they have observed life cases similar to my own and concluded the rewards are so often so incommensurate as to make the effort for success scarcely worthwhile.

"As a youth—I am now past 65—I doubt if there was anyone fired with greater ambition than that which burnt constantly within my soul. I felt that I was destined to do great things in the world. To begin with, though the ides never daunted me as a youth, I was one of the unfortunate who are born with "no chance," as the phrase goes, of common patronage, of a poverty-stricken family in a backwoods district, afflicted in childhood with a physical handicap, and without the opportunity for higher education.

WORKED HARD

"Despite all these handicaps, I still determined to make my mark. I read virtually everything I could get my hands upon. Not only read, but studied the Bible, Webster's Dictionary and all the works on scientific subjects that I could get, and as the result I am frequently asked from what college I was graduated. I tell them the Poor Man's College, for I learned the printing trade, became a newspaper man, got into business for myself on a shoestring at the age of 24, and worked sixteen hours a day for all the long years in order to make a success of that newspaper of mine.

"At first it seemed as if success were in my hand, for I wrote and sold short stories, verses and articles and was making a name for myself. Then I married. Children began to come all too regularly and the struggle for existence and support of those beloved dependents began and continued through the swiftly flying years, leaving no time nor opportunity for anything more than the battle with life itself. I worked hard and unceasingly. Had no bad habits, indulged myself in no luxuries. Then, one day I woke up and realized that I was old and had not amounted to anything. All of my ambitions, all of the fond dreams of my youth were dust and ashes.

"I was 65, without a dollar to my name, without title to one foot of real estate, still dependent upon my day's labor and with depreciated earning capacity. And perhaps it is the realization of something of this sort of thing that kills the ambition in some young men's souls."

THIS MAN SUCCEEDED, TOO

I print this man's letter in full because it expresses so well the sense of defeatism that fills so many other men's hearts who have worked hard all of their lives, and yet when they are old have nothing tangible to show for their labor. They have piled up no fortunes. Their names are carved on no monuments. They have borne the cross without ever wearing the crown of glory.

In their own eyes they are failures, yet by what standard can we measure success? Who are the successful, the kind, the gentle, the compassionate, the loving and the beloved, or the hard, the ruthless, who trample under foot all who stand between them and their goal? Is the miser a success, or the thief, or the crooked politician? No matter how much money he makes? Is a man a more successful husband who gives his wife matched pearls, or the one who gives her love and tenderness?

My correspondent thinks he is a failure because he owns no properaty, neither houses nor lands nor bank stocks, but he has stored within his mind the imperishable riches of a good education. He has turned an uncouth, ignorant, country boy into a scholar and a gentleman. He has opened the doors of learning for himself. And if he lacks the price of consorting with millionaires, he sits with the elect every time he opens a book.

And many a man who is still living on Poverty Flat after a life of toil can say: "My children are my investments." For into their rearing and their education he has put the money that would have made him rich if it had gone into stocks and bonds, instead of hungry little mouths and college courses.

Every man who does an honest day's work with such tools as God gave him is a success. It is only the slackesr and the quittes who are failures.

The Eastern States Championships tournament will be held at the Park Central Hotel, New York City, Feb. 26 to March 5, inclusive. The competition in this tournament is always equal to that in a national event.

I recall a hand played in the Eastern finals last year, on which the majority of the players bid seven no trump and made it, even though it involved a nice squeeze play. One pair, however, arrived at six no trump and made only six by careless play.

To make seven, the opening lead must be won by the declarer with the club king, and now the five spade tricks are cashed. South must discard three diamonds from dummy on the three long spades. East can discard a club and two hearts.

Cashing the king of hearts gives the declarer the bad news on that suit. But now he cashes the ace of clubs, and East is fixed. If he throws away a heart, all of dummy's hearts are good. If he discards the seven of diamonds, South goes over to the queen of hearts, cashes the ace and discards his three of clubs. He cashes the ace of diamonds and wins the last two tricks with the king and ten of diamonds.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Because there has been so much sickness this season it is timely to anticipate a child's probable visit to the doctor's office and prepare him for it.

A child will seldom fear an experience with which he is familiar, it is the unknown and the unexpected which terrify him. It may seem unnecessary to the parent to rehearse in advance the probable experiences he will have in the doctor's office, but if she does she will find how readily the child will carry through the suggestions made to him. Even any slight unpleasantness will be accepted stoically.

Begin by describing the doctor's office and the presence there of other mothers and children some of whom MAY cry. "It's because they are frightened," you say. "They don't know, as you do that the doctor likes you and wants to make you well."

Then enumerate the probable events. Explain how the measurements of height and weight are managed. Tell him that his temperature will be taken. Suggest that when this happens he may hold Mommy's watch and count the minutes.

Show him how to hold his mouth open very very widely while the doctor holds his wiggly tongue down with a piece of thin wood and looks way down into his red, little throat. Let him practice saying "Ah" very loudly with his mouth wide open. Mention the lights by means of which the doctor peers into his ears and nose and of course the "telephone" through which he listens to his breathing.

If there are shots to be given explain what they are, what they do and how they will feel. Every child knows that a pin prick bothers him very little. This small pain can easily be born by a big boy who knows what to expect.

Always talk about your own visits to a doctor, to the dentist or even to a hospital as if these were pleasurable since they are the necessary steps to having good health, good teeth or the end of pain and illness. One never knows at what moment the child, faced with like experiences, may make an emotional wreck of himself and nullify the value of doctor, dental or hospital care because of his frenzied fear of them.

Our leaflet, "Home Care of Colds," suggests the ordinary home procedures when the child has this common ailment.

COSTLY REFUSAL

BROMLEY, Eng.—(CP)—In July, 1941, G. W. R. Thompson was ordered by a court to destroy his dog and told he would be fined $4.50 for every day the animal continued to live. He has paid $2,250 and still refuses to kill the dog.

Before the Magistrate

Louis Phillips gave a farewell smile at the 12 police officers, two police women, two turnkeys, three R.C.M.P. officers, several lawyers, and a crowded court room, Wednesday afternoon, after he had been found guilty of intoxication by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., and sentenced to three months with hard labor at Fort Saskatchewan.

John Van Dyke, Edmonton, found guilty of keeping liquor for sale, was fined $300 or three months' imprisonment.

A. H. Derouin, charged with ending his employment as a coal miner at Cadomin without permission of Selective Service authorities, was fined $10 or 14 days. The accused, after leaving the mine, went to Edson, where he was told to go back, and refused, the court was told.

Leo Paul Langdone, Edmonton, charged with entering into an agreement with John Carrobourg, also of Edmonton, to transfer ownership of a motor vehicle in order to obtain more gas ration coupons for himself, was fined $25 or 35 days. A similar charge against Carrobourg, to which he pleaded not guilty, was adjourned to March 1.

Leo G. Ayotte, Edmonton, pleaded guilty to having loose gas coupons in his possession, and was fined $25 or 35 days. R.C.M.P. officers who searched the accused, said they found six commercial ration coupons in his wallet. Ayotte told the court he had found the coupons in his office.

Ronald V. Stanley, charged with breaking and entering the Edmonton Auto Parts, 102 street and 102 avenue, was remanded by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Thursday morning for trial at the next sitting of supreme court. Bail was set at $2,500.

Stanley was arrested by city police after an investigation of the above shop, where it was found that the combination to the safe had been damaged. Tools used in the shop were lying about the safe.

Steel filings, found on the shoes of the accused, were compared with filings taken from the floor of the shop, and found to be similar, the court was told.

Pleading guilty to a charge of dangerous driving, Kenneth LaFleur, Edmonton, was fined $20 or 30 days.

Harold Walters, Edmonton, charged with operating a motor vehicle at an unreasonable speed, was fined $15 or 21 days. A traffic officer told of following the accused on 112 avenue at 45 miles an hour.

Joseph King, Edmonton, charged with theft by conversion in city police court Wednesday, was remanded until Friday by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., after he had entered a plea of guilty. The charge arose after James Harvey Constant, Edmonton, had taken suddenly ill about 4 p.m. Tuesday, and, after leaving his purse containing money on a table, was taken to hospital in a taxi. According to another man, who was in company with King and Constant, the money had been counted, showing that there was $34 in the wallet, of which he alleged King took charge.

King, it was stated, admitted spending $25 of that amount, leaving but $8 in the purse at the time of his apprehension.

U.S. Labor Leader Strongly Opposed To "Draft" Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor told the Senate military committee yesterday a civilian labor draft would ruin the morale of war workers and might "break up millions of American families."

The measure, urged by President Roosevelt as the keystone of the administration's new legislative program, would force labor to work for the profit of private industry, Green declared.

"Millions of American families might be broken up," he said. "Thousands of small business enterprises might have to be abandoned."

The Labor leader, engaging in a sharp exchange with Senator Warren Austin (Rep.-Vt.), asserted "your bill compels a man to work, it is conscription of labor."

Attending the conference are four delegates each from the four universities, who have voting powers at the conference, and interested visiting students from the University of Alberta.

Woman Is Charged With Shoplifting

An Edmonton department store detective informed city police that when he arrested a woman for shoplifting, about 12:30 p.m., Wednesday, he found in her possession nine children's dresses, two pairs of kiddies' overalls, a suit of underwear, three pairs of shoes, four spools of thread, three pads of desk pins and a shopping bag, total value of which was $15.61.

Police accompanying the woman to her residence in a block found seven pairs of women's gloves and four skeins of wool.

Two charges of theft were preferred against the woman, who appeared before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Thursday.

Pleading guilty to both charges, the woman said she had not been in trouble of this kind before, and on each count was fined $10 or 14 days, with terms to run consecutively.

All mothers of service women in the city are urged to attend the meeting.

The "Mrs. Winston Churchill fund" is being raised and sent to England to build huts and hostess houses, leave hostels, and canteens for W.R.N.S., V.A.D.'s and girls working in munition plants. The need increased as more and more British women are replacing men. The great problem at isolated camps and airdromes where women are working, there is no common ground where the men and women can rest, save a Y.W.C.A. hut here a woman can act as hostess to her men friends and a normal meeting place is thus provided. Money to furnish and equip these huts and canteens is very much needed.

Mrs. Walter Morrish and Mrs. Horace Johnson will be treasurers for the occasion.

Mrs. Laine and Miss Doherty have been here several weeks examining every phase in the life of war-working women. The others have just arrived.

ALL ENTHUSIASTIC

They are all bubbling with enthusiasm for what they have seen, and for the completeness of the British mobilization of womanpower here.

Mrs. Laine, a former Calgary girl, was graduated from the University of Alberta as a barrister before she was 21. After several years' wait she was finally presented to the Bar by Lord Bennett, whose Surrey home at Juniper Hill she has been visiting.

MAGNIFICENT SHOW

"The women's show here is absolutely magnificent," she said. "There doesn't seem to be an occupation, no matter how dangerous, that women are not in.

"The brunt of the war seems to have fallen on British women—but cheerfully and without complaint they bed their families down in a tube at night, work as conductors on all night buses.

"I've seen them do every type of dangerous work in factories, what we would consider as major hardships and distress, they treat as petty annoyances."

Miss Doherty has visited Canadian servicemen here. "They are gasping for news from home," she said. "They beg for more letters from Canada, they long to see Canadian newspapers. They are anxious to know about the food, and how the Victory Loan went."

To Mrs. Konatz the food, living conditions and the morale are all better than she expected to find.

"Before I go back to Canada," she said, "I want to go and live with an average English family whose mother is doing a fulltime volunteer war job. I want to see how the housewives here cope with shortages of food and household goods, how they cope with such inconveniences as lack of help and queueing for food.

"I want to learn how the volunteer worker can organize her life so she can carry on her work and her home."

EVERY reader of The Edmonton Bulletin has seen the advertisement offering a $5,000 Travel Accident Policy for $1 a year. The policy provides for the above cash benefit for loss of life or certain specified injuries whilst travelling in street car, train, automobile or steamship, with a scale of lesser amounts for injury and disability payments.

This remarkable policy was originated by Whalen's and we can vouch for its genuineness. The annual premium of one dollar is so trivial as to make it a "must" for every family man—in fact for every member of every family.

We, at Whalen's, are ever on the alert to serve the public in matters relating to insurance. Our special field is in buying insurance for our clients—that is, choosing a policy or policies to cover specified risks at a minimum of cost. Our specialized and comprehensive knowledge extending over many years enables us to save substantial sums for our clients, both for personal protection and business coverage. We are always glad to talk over these matters, of course without obligation to you.

Portage Mutual Jubilee Year Is Greatest of All

"Nineteen forty-three has been the most prosperous year for the Portage la Prairie Mutual Insurance Company since its formation 60 years ago," M. G. Tidsbury, president of the company, reported at the annual meeting held in Portage la Prairie on Feb. 10.

In presenting the Diamond Jubilee report Mr. Tidsbury said, "We feel confident that the policy laid down in the early days of the company, "Insurance at Cost," "Service with Security," " Prompt and Satisfactory Loss Settlements," is the keynote of our success.

Assets have been increased by an amount of $145,101.66, while liabilities showed an increase of $85,083.45, occasioned by the special reserves that have been raised for unlicenced, unsecured reinsurance, thereby increasing the surplus by $60,018.21, an increase of 9.9%. Admitted assets on Dec. 31, 1943, were $1,138,382.61 a gain of 14.60% for the year.

INCREASES SHOWN

Both premium note and cash business showed increases over 1942 and fire insurance in force on the books at December 31, 1943, amounted to $94,408,546 of which $14,466,217 was reinsured on a net amount at risk of $79,942,329. Windstorm business totals $3,224,150 of which $980,193 was reinsured.

In briefly tracing the history of The Portage Mutual from the beginning Mr. Tidsbury concluded, "The far-seeing pioneer business men never faltered and through their just and sound principles, which have set the policies used today, The Portage la Prairie Mutual Insurance Company has today attained the respect of the public and business world alike. Its records stand as a monument to those who built better than they knew."

At a meeting of the board of directors, officers of the company were re-elected as follows: A. H. Thorpe was re-elected manager and A. G. Hall, A.I.I.A., treasurer. M. G. Tidsbury was re-elected president and E. H. Muir re-elected vice-president of the board of directors which consists of E. D. Alder, James McKenzie, Robert McDermott, J. C. Miller, K.C., Joseph Trimble, Arthur Sullivan, K.C., Winnipeg and Hon. D. L. Campbell, M.L.A.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—Rail stocks revived briskly in today's market, but while scattered industrials followed with more or less enthusiasm, numerous leaders continued to exhibit a high degree of apathy.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Feb. 17—(AP)—Strength in rail shares following a boost in the dividend rate of the Southern Railroad from 1¾ to 2 per cent. featured today's stock market. The London & North Eastern also increased its dividend from 2⅝ to 2¾ per cent.

Industrials were selectively supported along with Kaffirs. Oils were irregular, and diamonds eased. British funds were steady.

LIVESTOCK TRAFFIC

EDMONTON, Feb. 17—Total receipts of cars trucked, driven and shipped by rail to local livestock agencies: Cars 1, cattle 207, calves 17, hogs 151, sheep 31.

Shipments on Feb. 15: To British Columbia, 1 car calves and hogs, 2 cars cattle, 2 cars hogs; to Eastern Canada, 1 car hogs, 3 cars cattle.

Debunker

Medical men have debunked the idea that a red nose indicates a hard drinker. In most cases, it means nothing of the sort. In fact, very few cases of red nose can be attributed to drinking alcohol. Every community has red-nosed people who are actually total abstainers. Large red blood veins on a person's nose merely indicate that there is an excess blood flow through the skin in that area. There are countless causes of dilated veins and capillaries besides the upturned bottle. And how about Santa Claus?

Winnipeg's Rye Price Unsettled

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17—(CP)—Weakness at Chicago had an unsettling effect on rye prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange today with declines at the low point 1¼ cents under the previous day's close.

May rye finished 1⅛ lower at $1.26b, July 1¼ lower at $1.24⅛, and Oct. 1¼ lower at $1.22⅛a.

Moderate support, in the nature of resting orders, was offered by New York interests and local commission houses, as prices sagged. The volume of business, however, was comparatiely light. Odd cars of oats, barley and rye were taken by shippers and exporters for accumulation at Fort William and Port Arthur.

Rye Prices Drop On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, Feb. 17. — (AP) — Rye prices dropped about a cent and all other grains were weak today following a Washington report that a final contract between the United States and Cuba for importation of Cuban molasses and industrial alcohol had been signed. The molasses would supplant grains in manufacturing industrial alcohol.

Commission houses were persistent sellers or rye. Some local traders gave the grain support in early dealings, but this type of buying was not aggressive. Interest in the wheat market was light. Houses with cash connections were on the selling side. Weather was considered mostly favorable for the winter wheat crop.

Final prices were at the day's lows. Wheat finished ¾-1⅞ lower, oats were unchanged to ½ lower, rye was down 1¼-1⅝, and barley was ⅝-1⅛ lower.

400 Russian Planes Attack Finn Capital

By JACK FLEISCHER
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 17.—Four hundred Red air force bombers raided Helsinki during the night in what may have been an attempt to hasten Finland's decision to get out of the war, and the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen indicated that former Finnish premier, Juho K. Paasikivi, may have begun peace discussions with the Soviet envoy to Sweden, Mme. Alexandra Kollontay.

The newspaper said that "many signs pointed in the direction" of more tangible contacts between the Finns and the Russians here "and that the first real peace talks occurred between Mme. Kollontay and Paasikivi." Tidningen said it also was rumored that Paasikivi had met M. Semjonov, chancellor of the Russian legation.

Foreign reports that Paasikivi has left for Moscow appeared at least premature. He still was in the Grand Hotel here this morning.

Mme. Kollontay arrived in Stockholm yesterday from Saltsjoebaden, where she had been recovering from a slight illness. Paasikivi could not be reached at his hotel during most of yesterday.

Co-Operation of Provinces On Agriculture Problems Is Urged in Legislature

The Alberta government should seek co-operation of the governments of Saskatchewan and Manitoba with a view to joint action in investigation of the possibilities of industrial uses for farm products, Elmer E. Roper, C.C.F. M.L.A. for Edmonton, said in the Legislature Wednesday.

"It is altogether likely that interests centred in other parts of Canada may not be favorable to the development of industrial uses for farm products, and may exercise a strong influence to prevent it," said Mr. Roper. "This may prove to be a matter of very great importance to western agriculture."

"I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that the Alberta government seek the co-operation of the governments of Saskatchewan and Manitoba with a view to joint action in the matter of research now, with a view to more definite action after the war."

SPEAKS IN DEBATE

Mr. Roper, lone representative of the C.C.F. in the Alberta Assembly, was speaking in the debate on the Speech from the Throne, and followed Mrs. C. R. Wood, Social Credit M.L.A., for Stony Plain, in the debate.

"I wish to refer to another question under the heading of agriculture which is receiving an increasing amount of attention from those engaged in the farming industry," the C.C.F. M.L.A. continued. "In the two farm conventions held in the province last month, resolutions were passed calling upon the government to establish experimental community farms, with the aim of promoting the best possible standard of living for the farm population.

"No one with any knowledge of conditions obtaining in this country could fail to recognize that our farm population has been to a very great extent deprived of most of the modern living conveniences which are available to urban dwellers. There are many who contend that development along the line of co-operative community farming is necessary to give the agricultural population the full advantage of modern techniques."

CO-OPERATIVE SYSTEM

Mr. Roper said it is also contended that the land can support more people in a greatly improved standard of living by co-operative farming.

"It seems to me that the request of the farm organizations that the government should conduct an adequate experiment along this line is an entirely reasonable one," he told the House.

The farm population of Canada is approximately one-third of the total population of the country, Mr. Roper went on, and only in one period, from 1915 to 1919, has it received a third of the national income. In the so-called boom years, from 1926 to 1929, it received one-sixth, and in the decade from 1930 to 1940, it received as low as one-tenth.

CAUSE OF CONDITIONS

"That is the chief reason why farm living conditions are not what they should be," he said. "The Canadian Federation of Agriculture in its brief to the post-war reconstruction committee at Ottawa, called attention to the deplorable state of farm housing in Canada, and the general lack of modern conveniences in the homes. These conditions can only be remedied if agriculture receives a fair share of the wealth Canada produces.

"In connection with the maternity hospitalization provision, I want to express the hope that the arrangement when it is made will not throw any part of the burden of cost on the hospitals or municipalities," said Mr. Roper.

"I cannot forget that when the government assumed responsibility for treatment of tubercular cases, it imposed more than the full cost of the service on the farm owners of the province, who pay the major part of the three-mill social service tax with which the government replaced the two-mill supplementary revenue tax.

FREE HEALTH PLAN

"Why can we not in this province go forward at once to a health plan that will be free, in the same way that our public schools are free?" the C.C.F. member asked. He said such a plan is in operation in the little Dominion of New Zealand, and we could have it here,

"In that connection I want to mention the fact that I have heard spokesmen for this government say or infer that the people of New Zealand are taxed five per cent to pay for their health services. That is not true, Mr. Speaker.

"The five per cent tax pays also for old age pensions, a much more generous pension than ours, paid at 60 years of age; it pays for widows' allowances, family allowances, sick benefits, orphans' benefits, and others. The cost of medical services absorbs only a part of the five per cent social security tax in New Zealand.

REFERS TO RESOURCES

Referring to development of oil and other natural resources in the province, Mr. Roper said he could not forget that the government has been assuring the people that the oil resources have been and are now being developed in the best interest of the people of the province.

"But of course they have not been developed in the interests of the people. They have been developed in the best interest of shareholders of the few companies which have gained control of the resources.

According to the public accounts, the gross revenue of the province from its petroleum and natural gas resources last year was $843,000, Mr. Roper declared. But in 1942, there were three companies operating in Turner Valley which had a combined net profit, after setting aside reserves and depletion, and after payment of all taxes, of $1,455,000, or double the net revenue of the province.

"Counting depreciation and depletion reserves, the shareholders of these three companies received a benefit of close to $3,000,000, or approximately six times as much as the benefit to the people."

ECONOMIC CONTROL

Mr. Roper concluded with the statement that the task of Canadian governments is to exercise on behalf of the people of Canada that control of economic forces of the country which is necessary to continue production at the present level, and to channel into the lives of the Canadian people a volume of goods and services equivalent to those now being produced for war.

R. S. Lee, Social Credit M.L.A. for Taber, asked Mr. Roper at the end of his address what proposals he would suggest to the government, in dealing with the oil set-up in Turner Valley. The Taber member made reference to Mr. Roper's figures concerning oil companies' profits in his question.

In reply, the C.C.F. member said the government members, and the premier, had pointed out that oil leases could be cancelled at any time.

"That's part of the solution," Mr. Roper declared. "If there are leases, let's cancel them and expropriate in a legal way, and then take them over for the benefit of the province's people."

"Night Must Fall" To Be Produced

An unusual and spine-tingling drama, "Night Must Fall," will be the third production of the Edmonton Little Theatre's season, to be presented in the Masonic Temple, Feb. 29, March 1, 2 and 3.

The action takes place in the Essex County home of Mrs. Bransome, a neurotic invalid. Danny, a gay and lovable page-boy is a new addition to her household. The police have just discovered the body of a murdered woman in Mrs. Bransome's garden. Villagers say they heard a man singing "Mighty Lak a Rose" on the night of the crime. Danny also sings, "Mighty Lak a Rose" in moments of relaxation. Olivia, Mrs. Bransome's frustrated niece, is the only one who is not completely charmed with Danny, and is the first to sense the danger which threatens them.

This is a play full of shivers, shrewdly lightened by comedy, and will hold you in suspense from curtain to curtain.

Charge Seditious Acts to U.S. "Peace Now" Organization

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—The Dies committee yesterday attributed acts "clearly seditious and which tend toward the encouragement of treason" to the "Peace Now Movement." The group was organized last year to advocate a negotiated peace.

The special house of representatives committee on unAmerican activities condemned it in a formal report to the house as "an unAmerican group whose activities are calculated to interfere with the successful prosecution of the war."

In New York, Miss Bessie Simon, secretary of the organization said the executives of "Peace Now" had been advised unofficially of the Dies committee report, but added:

"We do not wish to make any comment until we are officially notified."

Sask. Tory Chief Glad to Support Bracken Policies

SASKATOON, Feb. 17—(CP)—"I am particularly pleased to stand behind the philosophy enunciated by John Bracken," Rupert D. Ramsay, newly- elected leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Saskatchewan, said here yesterday.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the Saskatoon Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Ramsay said the policies of the national Progressive Conservative leader, were "the most Christian and democratic set forth by any public man in Canada during my life time."

The new provincial leader was introduced by M. A. MacPherson, K.C., of Regina, who said the people of Saskatchewan had been given the opportunity of supporting a man "who knew the problems of agriculture and whose every tradition was one of service."

EATON'S

The Store for Young Canada

Odd, isn't it, how intimately the Big Store gets tied up with its customers? You go to EATON'S, you telephone EATON'S, in the same year-after-year taken-for-granted way that one drops in to see one's grandmother or telephone a friend.

That loyalty to the Big Store starts with the very young, and the tradition and wisdom of shopping at EATON'S is handed down in families like a rare recipe or a precious heirloom.

We, in turn, are proud of our youthful outlook. That's why we've made such definite plans for taking care of young folk . . . lo, these many years. We know how young ideas are created . . . how they change . . . how they grow. You can see that fresh, eager knowledge reflected in the things we have to sell . . . in the newest comforts for babies . . . in our capable grade-school togs, in the smartness and awareness of our high-school assemblies.

Oh yes, Young Canada is one of our liveliest concerns. Of course with prudent regard for parents and pennies. Mother knows that shopping at big, friendly, colourful EATON'S makes the basic appeal not only of feeling at home there, but of feeling sure of getting best value for her money and the widest choice that the market affords and government regulations allow.

So when we say that EATON'S is the Store for Young Canada, it is more than a jingle of words... it is a cherished reputation which we at EATON'S aim to maintain for a long, long time.
